Mgr. Sheen Is Wise
No John D. Private Car
Twilight Sleep in Russia
This Is a Good Country

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1936, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. International copyright and all other rights reserved.)

Monsignor Fulton J. Sheen, of the Catholic University, Washington, made an important statement at a dinner attended by high church dignitaries, including the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States, and Cardinal Hayes.

Monsignor Sheen told the assembled dignitaries, "We must go down to the poor and the unemployed and build up as strong a Christian proletariat as they would a Communist proletariat."

Too many of the deeply religious forget that in these days the poor demand more than good advice, rebuke for their sins, or praise of "resignation to poverty."

John D. Rockefeller, 97 years old, who has made hundreds of millions because he knew how to organize industry, and given hundreds of millions to education, science, and the fight against disease, returns to his modest frame house at Ormond Beach, Fla., following the sun.

Mr. Rockefeller owns no private car, and charters a public car to take his entire household South. He also has never owned a yacht, a race horse, a grouse moor in Scotland, a box at the opera, or in fact any of the "trimmings" that the very rich usually think necessary. He has managed, however, to find occupation that interests him.

Karl Radek, one of the best known Bolshevik newspapermen in Russia, important writer for the official newspaper Izvestia, is arrested, accused of sharing in the plot to murder Stalin.

For that conspiracy sixteen Russians, including prominent men in the Bolshevik party, have been executed. All sixteen not only confessed guilt in open court, but repented of their criminality "in betraying the proletariat." Every one declared that he deserved death, and every one got it.

There was nothing, according to correspondents, that indicated use of torture to force the confessions.

Obstetricians will be interested to know of the suggestion that the men confessed while under the influence of some drug of the "twilight sleep" order, the hypnotic influence of the drug strong enough to make those subjected to it, repeat any confession that might have been suggested.

Accusation in Russia is usually equivalent to conviction, and conviction means execution.

If Radek now confesses, as the sixteen others did, it would indicate that Russia has found an efficient system for dealing with alleged criminals.

The League of Nations, led by Poland, discusses the "increasing imperious necessity of finding for the immense reservoir of Jewish population in Central and Eastern Europe other outlets in addition to Palestine."

Some Americans return with delight to the 'homeland' in Scotland, or Ireland; others to the homeland in Palestine. But the average Scotch, Irish or Jewish American prefers to continue his career in this country, where opportunity is unlimited. Wherever opportunity and human decency are combined with freedom from the race and religious hatred that is based on inability to compete, Jewish enterprise develops opportunity and increases prosperity.

If all the Jews in the United States suddenly left, important business streets in the big cities would look like so many mouths with three-quarters of the teeth pulled out. And this country would know why Spain and Portugal withered, commercially, when brutal religious persecution drove out the Jews.

A book just published alleges that labor racketeers collect five hundred million dollars a year in the United States. Smaller rackets do well, also. Government discovers one racketeer gang posing as "eye specialists" that reaches from Maine to California, preying upon old people with defective eyesight. After deceiving them with glasses purposely made defective, the racketeers perform dangerously unskillful operations on their victims.

This "baby racket," according to the national government, collects ten million dollars a year, thanks to the ignorance of its victims. It was truly said by a great German:

Gegen dummheit kaempfen
Goetter selbst vergebens.

"Against stupidity the gods themselves fight in vain."

A heavy truck, avoiding a parked automobile, crashed into a street car, "all windows shattered, forty-nine hurt, many cut by flying glass." Glass that does not shatter, "fly" or cut anybody, costs a trifle more than the dangerous, cheap, shattering glass. Public vehicles, buses, and street cars, school buses especially, should be compelled to install it.

First Lady Coming To Campaign N. E.

Washington, Oct. 8 (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, preparing to join her husband in his travels for the first time this campaign, said today she would make the entire trip, with one possible exception.

If she sees a chance, she said, she may make an airplane dash down to see her newest grandchild, Elliott Roosevelt, Jr., at Fort Worth, Tex., and then fly back and catch the train again.

Mrs. Roosevelt added, however, this "not very likely."

The President's wife also disclosed that she would take his final campaign swing with him—a two-day jaunt into New England.

DIG IN ISLAND 'GRAVES' FOR SACK CLUE

Police began digging into two fresh mounds found on Governor's Island today for missing parts of the body of the Cinderella sack victim.

In extending the search a diver explored the harbor bed off East Boston.

And detectives, trailing new clues to the identity of the slain girl whose legs have been recovered, searched for a Providence and South End girl and for a woman strangely missing from a Weymouth cottage where evidence of a hasty departure and three pairs of size 3 shoes were found.

POLICE HEADS CONFER

Without a "break" in the macabre harbor mystery since Monday, Commissioner McSweeney and his directing police heads conferred at length with Medical Examiner William J. Brickley.

Search for the main part of the torso, the arms and head of the small-footed girl Dr. Brickley believes was a dancer was concentrated by several developments on and in the waters about Governor's Island where the left leg was found Monday.

Patrolmen Fred Collins and John Smith found what appeared to be two recently made grave mounds, 100 feet apart, on the island bank near the blockhouse of abandoned Fort Independence. They were some distance from the water.

The police boat Edwin U. Curtis, directing the search, returned to

FLAMES RAZE 11 HOTELS AND BANK

Quebec, Oct. 8 (INS)—Magnet for millions of Roman Catholic pilgrims for more than two centuries, the little village of Ste. Anne De Beaupre today was virtually wiped out by fire of undetermined origin.

The new basilica at the Shrine of Ste. Anne De Beaupre, built a few years ago to replace the church and shrine destroyed in an earlier fire, escaped the blaze, however.

With it a handful of buildings were saved by local firemen and an emergency force hastily summoned from Quebec.

Eleven hotels, two residences and the bank were destroyed.

Residents hastily evacuated their homes as the flames spread, fearing they would be trapped by the advancing flames.

The little village, which during the past two centuries has been the scene of many reported miracles achieved through the intercession of the saint, lies in a picturesque pastoral region at the junction of the Ste. Anne River and the St. Lawrence.

Yearly thousands of pilgrims from all over the United States and Canada, as well as scores from abroad, made their way to the shrine to seek intercession of its patron, the Mother of the Virgin.

First of the many reported miracles due to the Saint's aid was recorded March 13, 1658. On that date Louis Guimont announced he had been cured of rheumatism after he had placed three stones in the foundation of the first church dedicated to Ste. Anne in their district, and prayed for her help.

Since then, hundreds of persons have declared themselves rid of physical ailments by pilgrimages to the shrine and by pious works.

FORMER ROOSEVELT CAMPAIGNER BLASTS NEW DEAL

The Senator

Democrats Peer Into Cash Box

"Yippee-i-yay-i-yay," sings The Senator as he comes a-truckin' through the tavern portals, and barges towards his faithful poddner, Timmy.

Quick like a mouse, Timmy whips out the bar whiskey, and says: "Give me a few guesses, and I will guess why you come in here yippee-i-yay-i-yaying."

THE SENATOR

The Senator, who is in an expansive mood, announces that Timmy may guess while he will foment a fight with the demon, which is right to hand.

"I guess that you are a fugitive from the Brain Gang—Dubinsky and Wallace and Tugwell and those statesmen whom you scath with your scathing remarks."

"Ix-nay," spouts The Senator. "Then the little woman, maybe, has softened you up by putting you to sleep with a paving block?"

"Timothy," The Senator said in a dignified manner, "do not bandy the name of the little lady who is my help-mate around this tavern. Furthermore, I helped lift her back into the bed last night, so that she wouldn't get up on the wrong side of the floor this morning. You will be kind enough to keep my personal affairs out of this."

Vacuum Cleaner

"Well, then," said Timmy, "you are a vacuum cleaner which has picked up more dirt in your travels, so dump it here."

"I wouldn't call it dirt, Timmy. Just a small item of interest here, and a drib-drab of gossip there."

"Like what," says Timmy, who is an out-and-out sucker for political gossip, and is practically foaming at the mouth as The Senator outpoints the bar whiskey.

"Like, for example, that little matter of auditing the books of the Democratic state committee for the past two years. It is a deep secret, Timmy, but the supporters of a certain Democratic candidate who has been getting the jolly old push-around and the merry old maul-around want to know what has been done with the receipts for the past two years. They know that their man, who beat the organization into a batter in the primaries and won a place on the state ticket, has been getting fishy looks and clammy silences when he suggested that he might use a bit of the root of all evil in his campaign."

"It's one for all, and all for one," said Timmy, and he added virtuously, "Democracy will triumph. We will overcome the greasy-vested interests. Right is right."

"Yes, Timmy," The Senator said wistfully, "that's what the supporters of this candidate think. All they want is a widow's mite, and they can't seem to get it. So they are taking secret steps to compel an audit of the books before 'Lection Day.'

"Gracious,"—Timmy occasionally ups with a word like that—"Democracy is in peril, like they said down to Newspaper Row at the rally."

"It must be," retorts The Senator, "when young Bill Youngman, one of Felix Frankfurter's bright young men, and J. Weston Allen are being egged into campaigning on their behalf. Youngman is the son of the late Republican lieutenant-governor, and J. Weston Allen was old rock-ribbed Republican in person before he got a job in Washington for the raw dealers.

"That'll help the cause," Timmy replied, and he said "the cause" in reverential, upper-case letters.

Into Tall Grass

"It will, Timmy, unless they happen to tangle with such rollicking parties as Joe Ely and Frank Hurley and Dan Gallagher, tried and true Democrats who are going to speak against the Roosevelt rondelay.

"They are going to send J. Weston Allen traipsing out into the tall grass, and will try him out in Republican towns to note the reaction."

"Well," said Timmy wistfully, "I hope he gets stoned. I've never seen a Republican stand by fellow Republicans."

"Timmy," said The Senator with deep conviction in his voice, "Republicans don't stone old Republicans like J. Watson. They will simply freeze him with some frigid looks, and then—"

"Then what" quivered Timmy, who was all a-twitter.

"And then they will salt him, and pack him away with the cods which are not sacred."

"Poor fish," Timmy muttered.

LANDON TO INVADE FOUR PIVOTAL STATES

"FIGHTING TOUR" STARTS

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Topeka, Kan., Oct. 8—In fighting trim for a whirlwind invasion of pivotal states, Governor Alfred M. Landon was prepared to leave here tonight on a seven-day campaign tour of Illinois, Ohio, Michigan and Indiana.

The Republican nominee was aware his tour may have a decisive effect on the outcome of the November election. His advisers have told him he can win the Presidency if he can carry these four states.

Landon will depart aboard his "Sunflower Special" at 7 p. m. with a major address on the budget in Chicago tomorrow night as his first objective. He will spend the following three days in Ohio, attending the Ohio State-Pittsburgh football game at Columbus Saturday afternoon and delivering a major speech in Cleveland Monday night.

Another major address in Detroit Tuesday night, a tour of Michigan cities Wednesday and a dozen stops in Indian Thursday will complete the tour.

Landon entered this semi-final stage of his campaign with a dramatic "Come on Governor, let's fight" plea from a cousin of the first American soldier killed in France during the World War.

FIGHTING APPEAL

This fighting appeal was made by Arthur G. Gresham of Indianapolis, first Indiana state commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and himself a wounded overseas veteran. It stirred Landon deeply. He said Gresham had given him "new courage."

The veteran's letter read:

"I am just a disabled veteran who served 14 months in France and spent two years in the hospital. My brother, Walter O. Gresham, died as a result of his service. My cousin, James Bethel Gresham, was the first American soldier killed in France. We made these sacrifices because we believe in and love America.

"Now that the principles and ideals for which we gave our all are threatened and the very liberty of America is at stake, I appeal to you to put up the fight of your life. You must win. America needs you. Again I'll do my bit, so come on, governor, let's fight. We both know how, and cost what it may, we have never lost yet.

"Yours in comradeship,

"ARTHUR G. GRESHAM."

In reply, Governor Landon wrote:

"Your letter has given me new courage.

"The name Gresham has been written high upon the rolls of the nation's military heroes. I know that the devotion you and your relatives have shown your country in time of war has been animated by the most profound patriotism, and I realize that the sentiments you express today for the preservation of the traditional American character spring from the same source.

"I am happy to know that we are fighting together in this common cause. Such loyal expressions as yours give me renewed confidence that victory will crown our efforts."

ATTACKS ROOSEVELT

Landon earlier issued a statement, charging the President with "being so careless with facts and figures it is not surprising his Cabinet members likewise are reckless." It was based on the President's speech in Pittsburgh, declaring payment of the World War adjusted compensation was "no longer a future obligation of the government."

Landon pointed out that the bonds, issued to pay the bonus, remained obligations of the government.

Landon also attacked the administration for importing corn and meats, while "the President's agricultural spokesman"—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace—went through the Middle West boasting of farm recovery under Roosevelt policies. Landon insisted higher farm prices were due in part to the drouth and had risen steadily, once the Supreme Court invalidated the Agricultural Adjustment Administration act.

KNOX LASHES DEAL PLEDGES

By CHARLES N. WHEELER
Special to American Newspapers, Inc.

Philadelphia, Oct. 8—Following his triumphal tour of New Jersey, Colonel Knox fired a double-barreled blast at the Roosevelt administration here.

The G. O. P. vice-presidential candidate picked another campaign pledge of Roosevelt for his fresh assault—the one in which the President promised a cabinet of men who would support the 1932 platform to the letter. He said:

"At intervals I have quoted many of President Roosevelt's statements. Here is one I have not quoted before. It is from his Pittsburgh speech in October 1932. I quote:

"Before any man enters my cabinet he must give me a two-fold pledge of (1)—absolute loyalty to the Democratic platform and especially to its economy plank, (2)—Complete co-operation with me looking to economy and reorganization in his department."

Col. Knox declared:

"That pledge should be printed on a card and hung over Mr. Wallace's desk, and over Mr. Ickes' desk.

"It ought to be hung up in the resettlement administration where Mr. Tugwell has had seventeen thousand clerks milling around trying to find which American citizens ought to be moved somewhere else.

"I don't believe posting the card would help Mr. Hopkins very much."

Who Keeps Them Idle, Industry or Roosevelt?

President Roosevelt blames American industry for the continued unemployment. Nowhere has he attempted to explain the higher percentage of unemployment which exists in the farming states, where there are few mechanical industries.

Such farming states are North Dakota, South Dakota, New Mexico and Nevada. In the United States census these four states in 1929 had only 1361 factories and 17,235 wage-earners in these factories. These same four states on March 1, 1936, had 72,368 persons on the Federal Work Relief rolls. Here is the picture: 17,235 wage-earners in 1929 and 72,368 on WPA, etc., in 1936.

One little industrial city, York, Pa., has as many factory wage-earners as these four states combined. Industry in York employed 15,000 in the fall of 1934 and 18,000 in the fall of 1935. Not a single factory was closed in York during the depression.

Industry's job in York has been to keep people at work and make thousands of new jobs.

Roosevelt's record in North Dakota, South Dakota, New Mexico and Nevada has been to destroy jobs by destroying crops.

CURLEY, DOLAN, HURLEY LINKED BY J. F. SHEA

By L. CONANT, JR.

A charge that if State Treasurer Charles F. Hurley were elected Governor, "we would in fact have Curley and Dolan," was levelled at the Democratic nominee today by former State Senator John F. Shea.

"John W. Haigis," he declared, "has made it perfectly clear what the real tie-up is in the Democratic party.

"He has revealed to the voters the close hook-up in the company that has been operating here in Massachusetts for the past 21 months known as C. H. and D. Co., otherwise known as Curley, Hurley and Dolan.

BOND DEAL NOT DENIED

"It is with those two yachting pals, Jim and Eddie, that the Democratic candidate for governor hopes to establish a record as governor along the lines he has already established a record of close relationship and intimacy with these associates.

Mr. Hurley does not deny that he purchased nearly a million and a half dollars worth of bonds with the taxpayers' money from the dummy and fraudulent corporation, Legal Securities Corporation. He says that his two deputy treasurers made the purchases.

"If you were elected Governor, Mr. Hurley, who is going to be the real Governor? You or some individual or group of individuals behind whom you will seek to hide your own identity?"

CITES HURLEY VISIT

In a statement from Haigis headquarters, Shea was quoted as charging that on the day counsel in the Dolan case was delivering their final arguments before Judge Hanify, Hurley was seen in conference with Dolan and Tom Mahoney, Dolan's lawyer, in the dining room of the Boston City Club.

According to Shea, Hurley entered the room, walked to Dolan's table and remained by Dolan's side until the noon recess was over.

WAVED TO JUDGE

According to Shea, Hurley "smiled and waved" at Judge Hanify, who was sitting a few tables away.

Shea scored the meeting, interpreting it as an "open and public evidence of intimacy between Hurley and Dolan" and construed it as an attempt to "influence the judiciary."

Informed of the allegation, State Treasurer Hurley declared the "interpretation of the situation was absurd."

"On that day," he said, "I first sat with Mr. and Mrs. Reardon and after they left moved to another table.

"I frequently go there for lunch and sit with someone I know.'

ROOSEVELT OFF ON WEST TOUR

Washington, Oct. 8 (INS)—President Roosevelt set forth today upon one of the most strenuous campaign trips any candidate for the presidency ever undertook—a journey of some 5000 miles, with speaking engagements in 11 states.

Most of the territory through which he will carry his appeal for re-election is regarded as politically doubtful—Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, Wyoming, Colorado, Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, and winding up in New York state.

Some of the states are more doubtful than others. Kansas, for example, is generally considered safe for his Republican opponent, Governor Alfred M. Landon. On the other hand, Missouri is generally conceded safely Roosevelt territory. The others, by common consent, constitute fighting ground.

The importance of these states is best attested by the fact that they have a combined strength in the electoral college of 181, little more than a third of the total. They are vital to the election prospects of both Mr. Roosevelt and Governor Landon.

Major speeches will be delivered in Chicago and Omaha over national radio hookups, and in Denver and Detroit.

'Quit Party' Lee Says of President

ROBERT O. LEE

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Robert O. Lee, Boston business man, former Texan, and original Garner man in Massachusetts who stumped the country four years ago for the Roosevelt-Garner ticket, today in a bristling statement came out squarely for Governor Landon, the Republican nominee, for President.

Lee, who made more than 100 speeches for Roosevelt and Garner in 1932, declared that while he still has the highest personal regard for Vice-President Garner, he was disappointed that the Texan made it quite clear in his Philadelphia acceptance speech that he is following the leader.

"That leader must be ousted," Lee said.

"With the government going into the red at the rate of eleven million dollars each day it is hardly short of criminal for officials in whose hands we have placed the reins of government to declare that 'there will be no increase in taxes needed next year'," he stated.

"We will either have more taxes or a larger deficit. Which is worse only the future can tell. The undisputable fact is that our entire financial structure will be dangerously undermined if the present policies persist. Pump-priming with the people's money may have been a debatable question at the New Deal's outset but today it is no longer a moot question.

FORGOTTEN MAN HURT

"This foolishness must stop, else it will surely lead to a panic which will make the depression look like a two-bit piece. And in the end, the small man—'the forgotten man' we don't hear any more about—will suffer most; not the 'princes of privilege' of New Deal spokesmen."

Holding that complete economic recovery cannot possibly come without the recovery of our cotton markets or an adequate substitute for the South's chief agricultural product, Lee asserted that during the Roosevelt administration cotton production in this country diminished 43 per cent while India increased her production 8 per cent, Egypt 22 per cent and Brazil 68 per cent.

Small and large business men had confidence in President Roosevelt for the first two years of his administration, Lee continued, "but found that his word could not be taken at fair value."

Home in Boston today after a three-day tour in western Massachusetts cities and towns, the Democratic state ticket candidates won't halt for a moment in their battle for ballots.

Still working together, all state ticket candidates will attend rallies which have been scheduled for tonight by the Democratic state committee in Haverhill, Amesbury, Ipswich and Newburyport.

All candidates on the ticket expressed gratification today over the reception accorded them in western Massachusetts, where they addressed thousands of voters in the key cities and many small towns.

The concluding day of the tour took the candidates into Westfield, Chicopee, Holyoke and Springfield.

During the day, it was estimated that Governor Curley, State Treasurer Hurley, James Roosevelt and the other state ticket candidates addressed more than 15,000 persons.

HURLEY LASHES BOWKER

The candidates were in fighting form when they concluded the western invasion in Springfield where they were greeted by more than 2500 persons in the Springfield Auditorium, scene of the State Convention.

State Treasurer Hurley lashed out at his Republican opponent and "his mud-slinging hirelings."

The Democratic gubernatorial nominee won roars of approval when he replied to charges made by Representative Philip Bowker of Brookline that as State Treasurer he had purchased $1,400,000 worth of municipal bonds for the state from former City Treasurer Edmund L. Dolan and the now defunct legal securities corporation.

"The purchase of municipal and state bonds are made only after careful examination, review and recommendation by two experts of recognized authority in the office of the state treasurer, namely, Deputy Treasurers Karl H. Oliver and A. H. Paton," Treasurer Hurley said.

"It is a policy that has been followed for the past 20 years. Representative Bowker is well aware of this fact."

Hurley predicted a "verbal slugging" for his G. O. P. opponent which he said would be delivered via radio tomorrow night.

DEVER CLAIMS PROOF

Attorney-General Paul A. Dever wound up the tour by opening a new line of attack on his opponent, Judge Felix Forte.

In a radio address delivered from Springfield and at the several rallies during the night, Dever charged that his opponent was "part and parcel of the attempt to defraud Massachusetts of more than $200,000."

Attorney-General Dever stated that he had "documentary evidence" to show that "one Alfred Cenedella of Milford" is a member of the Forte campaign committee.

"I hold a photostatic record of the statement of that committee filed with the office of the Secretary of State on August 12, 1936," Attorney-General Dever said.

"It is an official document. It discloses that one of its six members is one Alfred Cenedella of Milford.

"Who is Alfred Cenedella? Of course he is one of the Cenedellas of Milford. But, more than that, he is the lawyer for Cenedella & Company, which attempted to outrage the dictates of common justice at the Quabbin reservoir."

Cardinal Arrives in N. Y.

Pacelli Is Silent On Fr. Coughlin

Eminence described as his "just [illegible] entry."

In the statement he said he was here merely on a visit "to see with my own eyes this country and to feel the pulsations of its life and labor."

The statement touched only generally on the current unrest in many parts of the world, but it contained an unmistakable shot at Communism and pagan creeds which exclude Christianity.

"Within the limits of the divine law which embraces all humanity," the statement said, "and which is the law of the time, the good and the beautiful, every people and every state is able fully to develop, to perfect and to ennoble those qualities and those talents with which the omnipotence of the Creator has endowed it. . . .

Duty to God

"The church cannot refrain from reminding peoples and those who govern them of their duty to submit without reserve, not only in private life but also in public life, to the supreme domination of God, and to the majesty of divine law, natural and positive, which takes precedence over all human legislation.

"I am happy to be able to say," the cardinal said, "that the Holy Father, in the midst of the heavy burdens of his apostolic office, with youthful energy and untiring devotion ever labors by every means in his power to extend to all peoples and all nations in their present difficulties the incomparable aid and encouragement found only in the teachings of Christ."

Though he celebrated his 60th birthday last March 2, His Eminence looked like a man under 50. He is tall and slender and quick of movement. His eyes are black and sparkling. He gives the impression of great intelligence. He wore glasses.

Poses Willingly

His garb consisted of a black travelling cassock trimmed with a brilliant red. He wore a Zucchetto (a red skull cap) and a red sash of office. A pectoral cross dangled from the end of a golden chain. His cardinal's ring contained a brilliant blue stone.

He posed willingly for photographers, but when reporters sought to question him about reports that he might consider the political activities of Father Coughlin here, he smiled and with a gentle gesture of his thin hands, waved the questions aside.

His statement read in part:

"On this, my first visit to the United States, there is no need of a lengthy statement to have you understand my desire, cherished for a long time, to see with my own eyes this country and to feel the pulsations of its life and of its labor.

"I am happy to be able to say that the Holy Father, in the midst of the heavy burdens of his apostolic office, with youthful energy and untiring devotion ever labors by every means in his power to extend to all peoples and all nations in their present difficulties the incomparable aid and encouragement found only in the teachings of Christ.

"Echoes Here"

"More than once in the years that are past and also in the present year he has made his powerful and disinterested voice heard as a teacher and as a shepherd; and it is pleasing to know that the echo of the words which came from his paternal heart was not confined, even in the United States, only to those who are united to him by faith.

"In these difficult times, so disturbed by political and social passions, the voice of the Pope represents not only the authoritative word of the head of the Catholic church, but also expresses the dictates of reason and equity, of justice and prudence, of wisdom and humanity.

"Outside, and above all conflict of parties whose interests are purely earthly, the voice of the Father of Christendom is raised, amid the struggles of the present hour, to warn humanity that it is following and that it will follow the wrong road if it refuses to recognize and observe the noble and pure doctrine of the Gospel."

"The church cannot refrain from reminding peoples and those who govern them of their duty to submit without reserve, not only in private life but also in public life, to the supreme domination of God, and to the majesty of divine law, natural and positive, which takes precedence over all human legislation.

"While she thus carries on her mission she has no desire to hinder or impede real prosperity or sane liberty among the people, but strives to secure that harmony between earthly activity and eternal destiny from which alone can come in all its fulness the welfare of the individual and of society.

"With the limits of the divine law which embraces all humanity, and which is the law of the true, the good and the beautiful, every people and every state is able fully to develop, to perfect and to ennoble these qualities and those talents with which the omnipotence of the Creator has endowed it.

Field for Labor

"Within its confines there is a field for labor and progress infinitely vast, in which the geniality of the statesmen, the strength of the organizer, the intuition of the inventor, the hunger for truth of the thinker, the thirst for beauty of the artist, can freely develop. As also the modest daily labor of the millions of human beings without name from whose work and sacrifices, from whose renunciation and sorrows the manifold life of a nation is formed no less than from the deeds of the great immortalized in the pages of history.

"I am happy indeed to find myself within the territory of a great people who know how to unite so beautifully and nobly a sense of discipline with the exercise of a just, legitimate and well ordered liberty.

"May all the sons and daughters of this North American continent, in spite of present difficulties, enjoy a condition of noble and decent human existence which is the prerequisite of a true and lasting peace in society."

The delegation which greeted the cardinal included:

Most Rev. Amleto Cicognani, apostolic delegate to the United States; Most Rev. John Gregory Murray, archbishop of St. Paul, Minn.; Most Rev. Francis J. Spellman, bishop auxiliary of Boston; Most Rev. Gerald O'Hara, bishop of Savannah, Ga.; Most Rev. Stephen J. Donahue, bishop auxiliary of New York; Most Rev. William D. O'Brien, bishop auxiliary of Chicago, representing Cardinal Mundelein; Very Rev. Msgr. Egidio Vagnozzi, auditor, apostolic delegation, Washington; Very Rev. Msgr. Francis J. McIntyre, chancellor, archdiocese of New York; Basil Harris, vice-president, International Mercantile Marine Co., the United States Lines, and James Cox Brady, Jr., nephew of Mrs. Nicholas Brady and the late Nicholas F. Brady.

DODGE PAID FEE IN DOLAN CASE

Attorney Robert G. Dodge was paid $12,500 for his services as special assistant corporation counsel for the City of Boston during its prosecution of the case against Edmund L. Dolan, former treasurer, accounts disclosed today.

This, city auditors said, brings to approximately $50,000 the cost to the city of investigating and prosecuting the Dolan affair.

The Suffolk superior court judgment in favor of the city to the extent of $131,000, plus interest—or about $175,000—is set against these costs.

Attorney Dodge's services were from December 20, 1935, to September 23, 1936.

It was pointed out, however, that there were other fees, including those of constables regularly employed by the city, and that these charges are hard to assess to the Dolan case. Therefore, the definite cost may never be determined.

In addition the city paid out a sum estimated as more than the Dodge fee to former Assistant U. S. Attorney George R. Farnum for his services to the Finance Commission and to the law department. He was paid $200 a week over a long period.

SHIRLEY TEMPLE SUED

Producer Charges Contract Broken

Los Angeles, Oct. 8 (US)—Shirley Temple, child film star, has stepped into a class in which some of her older colleagues have unwillingly found themselves.

She was sued for $1,000,000.

Named as co-defendants with Shirley in the suit filed by Jack Hays, film producer, are her father and mother, George and Gertrude Temple; 20th Century-Fox Film Corporation, the California Bank and the California Trust Company.

As the basis for his suit, Hays cited a contract signed on October 7, 1932, by the Temples and approved by the Superior Court in which he was to have the right for two years to direct Shirley's film training, she to appear exclusively under his sponsorship.

He declares that on October 1, 1933, the Temples repudiated this contract, refused to permit him to continue with Shirley's management and turned over the direction of her film career to 20th Century-Fox.

Hays asks $500,000 damages immediately and an additional one-half of Shirley's earnings

HARVARD LOSES $165,000 TO TAXES

The present program of taxation "devoted in large part to government social programs" cost Harvard University $165,000 and the Jewish Federation $335,000, the will of Jesse Straus, New York merchant and diplomat, disclosed today.

In all, the former U. S. ambassador to France cut off 18 charitable bequests his will had named.

It was in the second year of the New Deal that Straus appended a codicil to his will which read:

"The present federal and state estate tax laws impose substantially increased tax burdens upon estates of decedents and may, under certain conditions, cause undue hardship and financial sacrifice and loss resulting from the untimely sale and liquidation of assets of the estate to provide for the payment of such taxes.

Social Service

"The increased estate taxes on the estates of decedents are devoted in large part to governmental social programs.

"During my lifetime I have made substantial contributions to various charitable, philanthropic and educational organizations. Under the circumstances now existing I deem it advisable to cancel and revoke the bequests made by me."

Just how large an estate the merchant prince left was not disclosed in New York probate court, but it was classified as "more than $10,000." The original will was drawn May 9, 1933. It was 14 months later, July 31, 1934, that the codicil was appended.

Mrs. Irma N. Straus, the widow, was named as residuary legatee of a trust created for her benefit and for two sons and a daughter. After Mrs. Straus' death, the children will share.

All personal property in New York City and Mt. Kisco, N. Y., where the Straus country estate is maintained, is included in the bequest to the widow.

Six grandchildren were left 1000 shares each of the stock of the R. H. Macy department store which Straus once headed. The stock is valued at approximately $50 a share.

Robert L. Levy, son-in-law, and Margaret Hollister Straus, daughter-in-law, both of New York, receive, respectively, 2500 shares and 1500 shares of this stock.

One bequest not cancelled in the codicil left to R. H. Macy & Co. 350 shares of the stock, to be set aside for the benefit of the person or persons making the best suggestions for improvement of the store.

It was only a year ago that Straus gave away some 52,000 shares of the Macy stock, valued at $2,301,000, to avoid the estate tax.

The tax prevailing at that time for gifts was $484,000. It would have been $560,700 after January 1, 1936, and considerably more if included in the will.

Straus was a graduate of the Harvard Class of 1893, a member of the Board of Overseers

Barr Counsel Calls Ex-Wife 'Gold Digger'

Concord, N. H., Oct. 8—Mrs. Lalla F. Barr, 63-year-old former New York socialite, was characterized as a "gold-digger" today as final arguments were made in her $100,000 damage suit against her former husband, James C. Barr, railroad supplies magnate.

"She's always asking for money, money, money," declared Attorney Thomas J. Leonard, counsel for Barr.

The attorney asserted that the property she claims was withheld from her by Barr was never hers in fact and that she never had the means to acquire the articles.

Counsel for Mrs. Barr, in his argument, asked the jury if it was fair that a woman who had lived with a man for 16 years as his wife should be deprived of her rights and "left out in the cold."

The jury will have the case tonight.

MISS FERGUSON IS CULINARY ARTIST

SUPERVISES AMERICAN SCHOOL

A brilliant record of schooling and experience is behind Edna M. Ferguson, well known today as a lecturer on homemaking and especially the finer aspects of cookery.

Edna M. Ferguson, well-known authority on home economics, will conduct the American-Advertiser Cooking School at Hotel Bradford Ballroom next week.

Miss Ferguson will be lecturer at the American-Advertiser Free Cooking School, which opens a four-day session in Hotel Bradford ballroom Tuesday.

Martha Lee, head of the American-Advertiser Home Economics Bureau, will be hostess.

Miss Ferguson is not only a graduate of Macdonald Institute of Guelph, Ontario, but she has also taken post-graduate work at Columbia University, New York City.

To round out her training in special phases of cookery she attended the Iridor School of Cooking, also of New York, acquiring further professional technique in the making of cakes and candies, two phases of the culinary art envied her by most housekeepers who have seen her accomplishments in this field.

For 12 years after graduating Miss Ferguson headed the home economics department of such well known educational centers as the Macdonald Institute at Guelph, Ontario, the Technical High School of Kitchener, Ontario, and Peterborough, Ontario, Normal School.

In these centers she taught thousands of adults as well as children.

Here Last Year

Then, wishing to extend her activities to broader fields, Miss Ferguson owned and managed tea rooms in New York, managed large cafeterias and on the side was consultant for those interested in club and restaurant work.

Following this business experience in the home economics field, Miss Ferguson wished to have a thorough understanding of the dietary departments in hospitals and for four years directed the administrative and dietetic interests of commissariat departments in hospitals, where she was responsible for feeding 3000 people three times a day.

Being tremendously interested in human welfare, Miss Ferguson has given a great deal of her time in earlier years to night classes in Home Economics for those who needed the benefit of such education but who could not avail themselves of it otherwise.

Pursuant to this same interest she entered the Cooking School field, feeling that to the thousands of homemakers who would attend her lectures she might pass on the valuable information which she has acquired throughout the years.

Her long and varied experience founded on her excellent training and coupled with an easy, pleasant platform manner, makes her one of the favorite lecturers on these subjects in the country today.

This is the wealth of experience that Miss Ferguson will bring to the American-Advertiser Cooking School, for the second time, her success last year being so pronounced that the thousands of women in attendance were unanimous in asking for her again this year.

Shark Slain In Water Off N. Weymouth

Trapped in eel grass when the tide ebbed, an 11-foot shark was captured today at Rose Cliff Beach, North Weymouth, after apparently having been lured in by a school of smelt.

Walking along the beach, Albert E. Nevins of Rose Cliff road saw something out in the eel grass, which is covered at high tide.

Believing the long dark object to be a piece of wreckage, Nevins waded out in the low water and found the shark wiggling in the meshes of the long, tangled grass.

Summoning five other men nearby, Nevins aided in dragging the shark high up on the beach, after it had been killed.

CHARGE REBELS USE NAZI PLANE

Madrid, Oct. 8 (INS)—Leftist Spain snatched eagerly today at prospects of open help from the Soviet union, hurling new charges of Fascist aid for the Rebels as the Insurgents moved in closer on the capital.

Capture of Santa Cruz de Retamar after a furious battle, according to the loyalist commander on that front, was due solely to the use of airplanes of German make. Swastikas painted on the wings could clearly be seen, he said.

NEW THREAT OF WAR

Soviet in Ultimatum to Spain

London, Oct. 8 (AP) — A bold Russian ultimatum to Europe's Fascist states threw the international situation surrounding bloody Spain into its most serious phase today since the civil war broke out.

Abandonment of the general non-intervention agreement or even graver repercussions might follow the Soviet challenge, observers asserted.

Moscow's warning she will leave the sidelines and openly support the besieged Madrid government unless Portugal, Germany and Italy halt their alleged backing of Spanish Insurgents was expected to be considered by the neutrality committee tomorrow.

Great Britain and France, the former obviously nettled by the Soviet bombshell, will try feverishly to patch up the neutrality framework, official sources predicted.

If such efforts fail, these sources said, Europe would be divided into even sharper classifications of Fascist and Leftist nations.

League of Nations officials at Geneva described the situation as of the deepest gravity. They pondered its effect upon the Socialist French government and Premier Leon Blum, who has been besieged by his Leftist supporters to aid their Popular Front brothers in Spain.

At Geneva, some League sources predicted an event of serious importance to European peace might occur within 24 hours as a result of the Soviet ultimatum.

The official attitudes of the Berlin and Rome governments have not yet been disclosed. Informed Italian sources, however, denied Premier Mussolini had violated the "hands off" agreement in answering the Russian charges Fascist and Nazi planes are now shelling Socialist troops.

Since Portugal has refused consistently, despite strong British representations, to participate in the committee's work it appeared an almost hopeless task to achieve a genuine workable neutrality.

The British government was irritated by Moscow's action in making public its ultimatum; the foreign office had hoped to withhold the document pending tomorrow's committee meeting.

Britain's foreign secretary Anthony Eden, suddenly broke off a Monte Carlo holiday and turned back towards London to take charge of the foreign office in the grave atmosphere created by the ultimatum.

Captain Eden, en route home, will confer in Paris tomorrow with Premier Blum concerning Anglo-French action in the new crisis.

The ultimatum was delivered by Moissyevich Kagan, Soviet representative on the committee, to representatives of countries accepting the original French proposal for non-intervention.

"If violations are not stopped immediately, the Soviet government will free itself of any obligations to the agreement," the warning said.

"The rebels now possess many bombing planes of German and Italian origin which did not belong previously to the Spanish army. The testimony of witnesses proved that supplies of ars from Portugal continue."

CHILD'S TEARS SAVE PRIEST

Lisbon, Portugal, Oct 8 (AP)—A Spanish priest who survived the siege of the Alcazar in Toledo told today of the government's executing of 75 priests on the staff of Toledo's world famous cathedral.

His own life, the priest told the correspondent of the newspaper Diario de Lisbon, asking that his name be left unmentioned, was saved by the tears of his eight-year-old sister.

At the time, he related, he was one among five priests left alive of the original staff of 80.

"When the moment came for my execution," he said, "my little sister rushed out weeping and embraced me. She tried to cover me with her little body.

"This emotional scene had a miraculous effect on the stone-hearted execution squad. Some of the militiamen had tears in their eyes for the first time, perhaps, since the revolution started.

"My life was spared and I was set free."

Soviet Looks to Britain, France to Avert New War

Copyright, 1936, by The Associated Press.

Moscow, Oct. 8—Informed sources said today Soviet Russia hopes Great Britain and France will abandon their "indifference" to alleged violation of the Spanish neutrality pact and take an equally strong position as the Bolshevists.

Last night, directly accusing Germany, Italy and Portugal of violating the pact through alleged war shipments to the Spanish Fascists, the Russians threatened to "free" themselves from neutrality obligations "if the violations are not stopped immediately."

Today, authoritative sources said, the Kremlin was withholding further action, awaiting moves of Great Britain and France.

However, if the powers fail to take a firmer position towards Portugal, Germany and Italy, it was made plain the Soviets would not hesitate to withdraw from the Neutrality Agreement.

Moscow regards the international situation surrounding the Spanish civil war, basically a conflict between Fascism and Liberalism, as extremely precarious, today's sources stressed.

It believes a firm stand by France and England to be the only thing that will save the situation from having a disastrous outcome for Spain and possibly for European peace.

The Russian commissars, should they decide to send military aid to the Spanish Socialists, faced delays and difficulties in dispatching supplies across Europe. Germany and Italy, it was pointed out, could head off Soviet ships. Airplanes would be endangered similarly.

Police Raid Fascist Headquarters in Paris

Paris, Oct. 8 (AP)—Police raided today 28 buildings occupied by branches of Col. Francois de la Rocque's Fascist social party. Squads descended on the party's principal and secondary headquarters, the office of the Fascist newspaper Le Flambeau, the center of the party's "sports society," and homes of De la Rocque and other leaders.

TAX FIGHT OPENS

Real Estate Men in Convention

Springfield, Oct. 8—The first New England regional conference of the National Association of Real Estate Boards opened here today with more than 100 members of the Boston Real Estate Exchange in attendance. Also present at the convention will be more than 400 of the leading real estate, life insurance and savings bank executives from other parts of New England.

Prominent among the early arrivals at the convention was President James M. Rothwell of the Boston Real Estate Exchange, who tonight will address the tax meeting to be held at the convention headquarters, Hotel Kimball, with noted tax experts from all sections of the country taking part in the discussion.

Rothwell in his plea against the confiscatory real estate tax now existing in most of the cities and towns of the Commonwealth will urge all Massachusetts real estate interests to band together in a united campaign to secure immediate relief at the next session of the legislature.

Also will be brought out the fact that thousands of parcels of real estate in this state are in distress because of excessive taxation and that the thousands of unemployed building trades mechanics will be unable to secure permanent employment and general prosperity will will not be restored until the unjust taxes being levied on real estate are removed.

The two-day convention of Realtors will continue without interruption except for food and sleep until tomorrow night at 10. William H. Ballard, director of the Boston Real Estate Exchange and vice-president of the National Association, will preside.

Movie Stars at Home -:- By Peggy Doyle

Maureen O'Sullivan Happily Married, Makes Home

Hollywood, Oct. 8—There are pixies in Maureen O'Sullivan's eyes and a great happiness in her heart, for she and her Jo-John are now happily married, and with the full approval of the Church of Rome.

MAUREEN O'SULLIVAN PEGGY DOYLE

Maureen O'Sullivan (left) being interviewed by Peggy Doyle, Boston Evening American reporter, who is in Hollywood interviewing movie stars in their homes about their homes.

And so great is her joy that she has completely forgotten those dark days when her contemplated marriage to John Farrow, scenario writer, appeared to be threatened by lack of ecclesiastical approval.

They will continue to occupy the little Spanish house Maureen has been living in for the past few years. It is white stucco with a red tile roof and it is "true Spanish," Maureen points out, not the Hollywood version of Spanish.

"I've just finished 'Tarzan' and there is no picture in prospect for me immediately, so I'm concerned only with being a wife and homemaker for the time," she told me as we discussed a lot of things that had never interested her before, such as establishing a very impressive-sounding routine of household management and making the house as comfortable as possible for her leige-lord.

"I'm really taking my household duties very seriously now that I'm married. I never did that before. I think there should be a certain routine that shouldn't be deviated from unless there is a special emergency.

"And so I've set Monday as cleaning day. I have the house gone over very thoroughly and because that is a real job in itself I never have anybody in to dine that evening.

"Tuesday, being an easy day, we usually have dinner guests. Thursday is the maid's day out. She has the downstairs rooms dusted by the time I get up at 9 and then she does our room before she leaves.

"Friday is a heavy cleaning day. Now that I'm married I have a couple working for us and Sam takes a different room every Friday and gives it a thorough cleaning.

Tea on Patio

"They're both very competent and, in addition to his other duties, Sam acts as John's valet, taking care of all his clothes."

Maureen's favorite dinner and tea guests are Carey and Carmelita Wilson, Benita Hume, Michael Tandy, acting British consul here and John Farrow's best man at their wedding; Merian and Dorothy Cooper; Norman and Sally Blane Foster, and Rob Wagner, who runs Script.

"When the weather's as warm as it has been these past Sundays we have tea on the patio.

"And I might say, in fact, I think I will say, that I'm very Irish about my tea. I don't care for any of your fancy teas. I like plain black tea—Irish tea. John likes Ceylon. And I hate weak tea, and tea that's made in a cold pot. It's absolutely the first commandment of tea-making, you know, that the teapot be heated by turning boiling water into it first."

The least formal room in the house, the study, is "where we really live," said Maureen, and no wonder. It's a most comfortable room with a gray-blue rug, a rust-colored couch heaped with rust, gray-blue and beige pillows, a rust-colored and a gray-blue and rust figured chair. There are low, off-white book-shelves, the contents cahtolic enough to satisfy anyone's reading requirements. John Farrow's ship-models, Maureen's gifts to him, are about the room.

The living-room ceiling is arched, and like the walls, of plaster in an off-white shade. A lovely Madonna looked down from her gilded frame over the fireplace.

Writer's Room

Upstairs, on the second floor, are Maureen's and John's bedrooms with dressing-rooms and bathrooms. Maureen's room, the walls and ceiling white plaster like the rest of the house, has red drapes at the window, a beige carpet and a heavily carved antique oak bed, covered with red damask. There are several matching chests of drawers, and on one is a Lalique Madonna. Her dressing-room has burgundy and white glazed chintz drapes and dressing-table skirt and burgundy carpet.

Farrow's room, with its high-beamed ceiling of oak, is a comfortable, simply furnished man's room, particularly notable for a large work-table.

It was seven years ago that the little Irish beauty, then aged 18, arrived here from Dublin to continue with a movie career begun during the filming of John McCormack's "Song O' My Heart."

The company was on location in Dublin, with Frank Borzage directing. One evening Borzage, noting a lovely girl in a beautiful evening-gown dancing in the Plaza Hotel ballroom there, studied her and decided she would be excellent screen material.

Her father, Major Charles J. O'Sullivan of the Connaught Rangers, was approached after the test—a successful one—was made.

"I like the test very much,' Borzage told him, "but I will tell Maureen that it is not satisfactory if you do not want her to accept a screen offer."

Struck by the frank and generous attitude of Borzage, Major O'Sullivan accepted the arrangement for Maureen to go with the company.

And now, so completely has Major O'Sullivan capitulated to Hollywood, that he will pay his newly-married daughter and her young bridegroom a visit within the next few months.

In tomorrow's Boston Evening American, you will get a chat between Miss Doyle and Frank McHugh. Part of it in the at-home surroundings; some of it on the McHugh garden gate.

Mother, Farmhand Get Life Terms

Winner, S. D., Oct. 8 (AP)—Mrs. Emma Kutis, 40-year-old mother of five children, and Henry Nemsgren, 21, farmhand, were sentenced to life imprisonment today by Circuit Judge John Bartine for the murder of Mrs. Kutis' husband, Tomas, slain in his farmyard last September 28.

Both pleaded guilty.

Protest of Amoskeag Bondholders Heard

The petition of Lawrence J. Harrington, of Manchester, a bondholder in the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company, who challenges the right of jurisdiction of the federal courts in Boston to hear reorganization proceedings, today was taken under advisement by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Appearing before Justices Scott Wilson, James M. Morton, Jr., and Presiding Justice George H. Bingham, Atty. Robert Buckley, representing Harrington, argued that Federal Judge George C. Sweeney, in his decision of their petition had not established jurisdiction.

Buckley contended that in answer to their petition Judge Sweeney had handed down a decision sating that "for the interests of all parties concerned the petition for transfer of the hearings are denied."

Harrington's attorney argued further that the right of jurisdiction, Boston or Manchester, as a principal place of business of the Amoskeag Company, had not been decided by the lower court and asked a review.

It is Harrington's contention that Manchester, N. H., where the mill is located, should be the seat of all hearings of reorganization and liquidation.

Charles Curtiss, attorney for the mills, submitted a brief and stated that the mills had places of business in Boston and Manchester and that the plaintiff had failed to produce facts sufficient to concern a transfer of the hearings.

The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals will hand down a decision within a week or ten days on the petition.

Minnesota Surrender Proof:

Hamilton Links Deal to Reds

New York, Oct. 8—Withdrawal of the Democratic candidates in Minnesota in favor of the Farmer-Labor Party, John D. M. Hamilton, Republican national chairman, declares, forged a perfect chain linking the Roosevelt administration to Communism.

Hamilton singled out of the Democratic surrender to the Farmer-Laborites as proof of earlier assertions made by himself. He said:

"This whole Minnesota situation was the inevitable result of the tie-up between the Roosevelt administration and the Reds. It came in four steps:

"First, the Communist party in Minnesota publicly endorsed the Farmer-Labor party.

"Second, Roosevelt made it clear he does not want to fight the Communists.

"Third, retirement of the Democratic candidates was necessary to get the united front for which th Communists are openly striving.

"Fourth, to achieve the united front the Democratic party was dumped.

"There you have a perfect chain if ever there was one."

CAN'T BACKSTEP

Under a barrage of questions from newspapermen, Hamilton refused to backstep on his previous charge that David Dubinsky, a presidential elector on the Labor party and Democratic tickets, had contributed funds drawn from his labor organization to the Spanish Communists. Hamilton said:

"The check for $5000, photographs of which have appeared in the newspapers, is the best evidence in the world that the money was sent to the Spanish Reds. The check bears on its face the notation that it is to go to the united Spanish front. The Communists themselves identify the united Spanish front as the Communist group in Spain."

Turning back to his previous challenge to President Roosevelt to give government agencies a free hand in routing out the alien agents of Communism in this country, Hamilton said:

"Why doesn't the President make public reports on Communistic activities prepared by the army and navy intelligence service? They have been at work on this for a long time."

Declaring he was never more confident of the outcome of the November elections than right now, Hamilton said:

CLEAR LANDON LEAD

"Governor Landon today has a clear lead in enough states to give him 300 electoral votes—that is 34 more than is required for election. And the tide of Republicanism hasn't yet reached its peak."

To Democratic claims that no more than four states west of the Mississippi river could be classified as "doubtful," Hamilton declared that Governor Landon will carry between eight and ten states in the western sector.

He said:

"I see the Democrats list Kansas as a doubtful state. Let me give you the real picture in Kansas. One of the leading newspapers in the state on Tuesday printed on its front page the statement that there was $25,000 of money that said Governor Landon would carry the state by a greater plurality than when he was elected governor the second time—with no takers."

As to complaints of registration, reported from some sections of the country where the Democratic leaders are known to be making an intensive drive for victory, Hamilton said:

"Of course it is going on. I saw some of it with my own eyes. While I was in Reno, Nev., only a few days ago, I saw Works Progress Administration trucks bringing in scores of WPA workers.

"At that, the fact they were taken in to register doesn't necessarily mean they won't have the right to vote as they please. Or, at any rate, so it may be assumed."

In the way of a little dig at Democratic National Chairman Farley, who, he was told, had said the "big secrets" of the campaign were about to be unfolded, Hamilton said:

"I haven't any idea what Mr. Farley considers big. Maybe Americanism isn't big to him."

GEM BARGAINS OFFERED TO 'NELLIE BLY'

Miss Dorothy Kilgallen, International News Service, Boston Evening American and New York Evening Journal, is racing around the world against Leo Kieran and H. R. Ekins, rival newspapermen, in an effort to be the first back in New York after a globe-girdling trip of three weeks or less. Miss Kilgallen's latest dispatch follows:

By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

(Copyright, 1936, by International News Service, New York Evening Journal and Boston Evening American)

Bahrein Island, Arabia, Oct. 8—With a wistful wish this was a treasure-hunt instead of a record-breaking round-the-world tour, your transplanted correspondent dropped down on this island at lunch time today to find herself immediately surrounded by a lot of energetic people trying to sell me—of all things—pearls!

Bahrein, it seems, is chief headquarters for the lucrative pearl trade of the Persian gulf. But the business office will probably be glad to know I resisted the blandishments of pearl vendors who, if they didn't actually hawk their wares like Fourteenth Street pitchmen, did their best to get me to the bazaars where they insisted priceless gems could be had at bargain prices.

TENT LUNCH

We launched beneath a tent on the shore of Bahrein island after a two-stop flight from Baghdad marked by only one untoward incident. This occurred when we were about to take off from that Arabian nights' city.

Some representative of the British embassy got the idea I was going to pilot our Imperial Airways plane, or thought I was flying my own machine or something. In any case, he politely but firmly forbid me to take off and it took a little explaining to make it clear to him I'm a commercial traveler on commercial air lines trying to get around the world a little quicker than anyone has done it before.

REFUELING STOP

We made a refueling stop in the Arab town of Koweit and then left for Bahrein.

The plane got us here at 1:20 p. m., local time, and we left an hour and a half later for Sherjah. I'm looking forward to a swim in the Persian Gulf off that town before supper tonight, provided the sharks that seasoned travelers say thrive in those waters don't keep getting in my hair.

China Clipper Lands At Honolulu Base

Honolulu, Oct. 8 (AP)—The China Clipper, bearing five newspapermen passengers in a flight to Manila preliminary to regular service October 21, alighted here at 6:43 a. m. today (12:23 p. m. Eastern Standard Time).

The big flying boat came down upon the water and was moored at 6:52 a. m. She had done the 2400-mile flight from Alameda, Cal., in 16 hours and 48 minutes with one other passenger and seven crew members aboard.

Goemboes' Body Lies in State

Budapest, Oct. 8 (AP)—The body of Julius Goemboes, Premier of Hungary who died Tuesday, was borne to the Parliament building today to lie in state.

The funeral train bearing the body from the sanitarium in Germany where Goemboes died was met at the Austrian border by the Premier's aged mother.

Radicals Still Flocking To Roosevelt Standard

By Harold Lord Varney

How much longer is Mr. Roosevelt going to keep up the fiction of his non-radicalism?

Every incident of the campaign tightens the alliances between the Left leaders of the country and the Roosevelt high command.

Every day witnesses new Socialist or Communist adhesions to the Roosevelt cause.

Already the band wagon rush to Roosevelt has virtually annihilated the Socialist party.

Poor Mr. Thomas, too honest to join the intrigue, is still futilely performing the motions of a Presidential race, but his audience has slipped away.

THE FAMILIAR INSTITUTIONS OF SOCIALISM HAVE GONE OVER, LOCK, STOCK AND BARREL, TO THE NEW DEAL.

The Rand School now rings with Roosevelt huzzahs. The Debs Memorial radio station, bought with the pennies of the New York garment workers, now crackles with eulogies, not of Debs but of Franklin Delano.

Mr. Hillman talks confidently of the transfer of 100,000 Socialist New York votes to the President. Algernon Lee, Gustave Strebel, James Oneal, Judge Panken, Mayor Stump, Adolph Germer, J. Stitt Wilson—the stiff-necked Marxians of yesterday—are now gargling their throats in preparation for an autumn of Roosevent sound-trucking.

In the Communist camp, the rush to Roosevelt is just as unmistakable, although it is distinguished by the usual Stalinite mystication of phrases.

A few days ago the managing editor of the DAILY WORKER, James Casey, nauseated by the hypocrisy of the present Browder campaign, turned in his Red Card in protest against the Roosevelt machinations in the party.

IN THEIR COUNTER STATEMENT, THE RED LEADERS DID NOT EVEN DENY HIS CHARGES.

The whole burden of the Browder-Ford song in this campaign is that Landon, not Roosevelt, must be defeated.

WHILE TECHNICALLY the Communist party still continues to oppose the President with the Browder candidacy, ACTUALLY the word has passed down the line that the rank and file shall trail along with the Labor Non-Partisan League.

Recently, despite the declaration that Communists would be barred, Mr. Roosevelt's American Labor Party in New York State admitted in a body the 103 organizations comprising the "Trade Union Committee for a Labor Party"—AN ORGANIZATION LAUNCHED AND DIRECTED BY THE COMMUNIST FACTION.

To pretend that these realignments of the American Left are taking place without the cognisance of Franklin D. Roosevelt would be puerile.

SUCH THINGS DO NOT JUST HAPPEN TO HAPPEN IN POLITICS.

Hard-boiled social revolutionists do not abandon their lifetime moorings without hostages from their new allies.

International Communists, with their unquenchable dream of the dictatorship of the proletariat, do not smile upon a New Deal President without a definite conviction that HE IS TRAVELING WITH THEM ON THEIR ROAD.

The overt support of the Hillmans and the left-handed support of the Browders in this campaign stigmatizes the Roosevelt Administration as damningly as anything which has been said or done by Dr. Tugwell or Professor Frankfurter.

It shows that, despite his protestations of non-radicalism, Mr. Roosevelt has passed the litmus paper test of the revolutionists.

Whether he admits it or not, RADICALISM knows intuitively that HE IS ITS MAN.

It is mobilizing all of its cohorts to the task of his re-election.

ROOSEVELT SON HINTS SUIT

Washington, Oct. 8 (AP)—Elliott Roosevelt's negotiations with Anthony H. G. Fokker to sell airplanes abroad were labelled a closed incident today by the Senate munitions committee head, but from Texas came word that the principal had other plans.

The President's son said at Fort Worth he would go to New York soon to consult counsel regarding statements Fokker made in a munitions committee deposition. One statement Roosevelt denied was that he contracted to sell military airplanes to Russia for a $500,000 commission.

"I believe my rights as a private citizen have been infringed," Roosevelt said.

His expressed resentment, however, did not include Senator Nye, the committee's head.

"If I were in Mr. Nye's position," he said, "and someone accused me of withholding facts from the public I would certainly release whatever sworn matter was in my hands."

Nye, in saying that "so far as the munitions committee is concerned the incident is closed," asserted that "since no sales were made, it is obvious the President's son did nothing illegal."

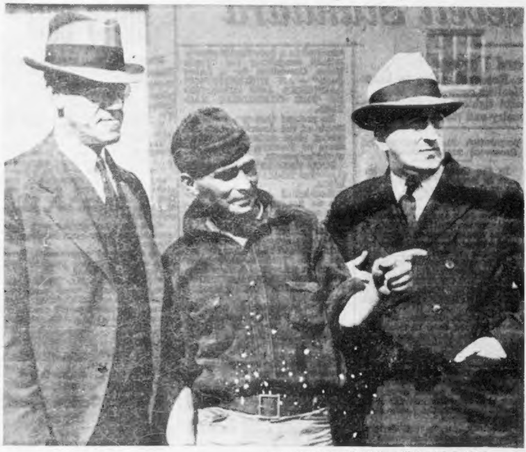
Police Checking Every Angle in Sack-Girl Mystery Murder



(Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

LIEUT. DUNN JIMMY GULAINO OFFICER HOMMELL

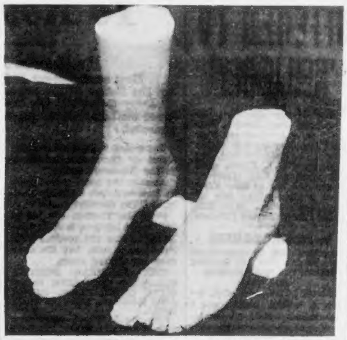
Jimmy Gallino, in center, accompanied by Lieutenant Lawrence H. Dunn (left), of the harbor police and Special Officer John T. Hommell on their way to Governor's Island. Gallino said he saw a man and a woman on Governor's Island, two weeks ago, and that the man came back from the island alone. The photograph was made at the harbor police wharf, as Gallino told his story.



(Pictures from InternationalNews Photograph Service.)

A front view, showing ankles and cafully manicured nails of the hack-sack victim's feet. Ankl measurements are 7¾ swollen, and 7½ normal. The moulge casts of the victim's feet, are being carefully examined police in the hope of establishing identification of the g victim.

VANISHED GIRL ON ISLAND NEW CLUE

shore for picks and shovels with which to explore the mounds.

James Gallino of the West End, a crab fisherman, reported to Lieutenant Lawrence H. Dunn that on a day about three weeks ago he saw a man rowing a woman in a large dory around the island, that they vanished behind it and that about three hours later he saw the man rowing away alone.

His story tied in with that of two East Boston men, James Edwards, of Bennington street, and James McGrath, of Saratoga street, who reported that while sailing September 27 near the island they found a gunny sack they thought contained meat and towed it to the island shore.

DIVER HUNTS TORSO

The actual murder, police believe, may have occurred on Governor's Island and the dismembered parts placed in the water at that point although the other leg was recovered close to the airport bulkhead.

While the police boat Edwin U. Curtis, equipped overnight with two-way radio, and two lobster boats hired by police concentrated the hunt near the island, Fred Wallace of Somerville, noted diver retained by the authorities, made his first descent in search of the missing head, arms and torso.

Wallace entered the harbor waters from McDonald's pier, an abandoned wharf at Jeffries Point, East Boston, from which police think the body may have been tossed. It is about a quarter mile from the point off the airport where the right leg was found.

Wallace, whose father, 31 years ago recovered the head of Susan Geary in the famous Suitcase Mystery of 1905, worked from his own tender which was tied to the police-boat, Watchman, the latter in turn being made fast to the wharf.

It was his intention to explore the harbor bottom from that point to the airport bulkhead and across to Governor's Island. A man's felt hat, and old shoe and a piece of cloth were the first articles he brought to the surface. They appeared to be without significance in this case.

2 HUSBANDS' FEARS

As the search progressed, two husbands expressed fear that their missing wives might be the victim. The most promising of these reports concerned the disappearance of a Providence and South End dancer.

The South End dancer clue, one of several receiving particular attention, was based upon the story of her husband, a Providence restaurant man, who expressed his fear that she was the victim, slain by three men he said took her against her will from a South End house.

Her description generally fitted that of the victim as reconstructed by Dr. Brickley from the legs and lower torso—she was 28 and a brunette and wore a size three and one-half shoe. The shoe size and the fact that she was a dancer particularly fitted with the findings of the medical examiner.

The "abduction" of his wife occurred two months ago, the Providence restaurant man said, although police have no report of it. The husband said he was ill at the time.

He and his wife had lived in Providence but came to Boston when he obtained temporary employment here and took lodgings in the South End house.

TOLD HIM OF HER FEARS

During his illness, while his wife was nursing him, three men came to the house in an automobile one day and forcibly took her away despite her protests and resistance, he said, and he did not again see her.

Furthermore, he declared, his wife had told him of her fears of certain underworld characters whom she had met during her dancing work and who had forced their attentions upon her.

She was No. 1 in importance on a list of nearly 100 missing girls and young women whose disappearance is under inquiry in the groping search for a clue that will stand up.

No. 2 is a girl who was a material witness in a New York white slave case who was kidnaped or spirited away from a house of detention in New York some time ago. She wore a small shoe.

Others were the South End woman for whom search has been made since yesterday when police learned she vanished with an admirer, and a Roxbury girl who had been associating with an ex-convict and was recently seen in East Boston, and a Laconia, N. H., woman last seen in Charlestown.

CHECK 92 NAMES

Police of all divisions, under general orders, carried a list of missing persons bureau subjects for check. Ninety-two names appeared in this list.

The Laconia man, who fears the victim is his wife, sent the following letter to Detective Ross of the missing persons bureau:

"Having read in the newspapers of the find in Boston harbor of a woman's legs, I am writing to you to report that my missing wife answers all descriptions supposed by experts to belong to the owner of the legs as far as same indicate.

"The facts are that my wife has been missing since September 1 when she left Portsmouth, N. H., with our child, her destination, according to her mother, being Charlestown, Mass.

"She is supposed to be living in Charlestown with ——. I have a grave suspicion which I share with her mother that all is not well with my wife as neither her family nor I have heard of or from her since she left Portsmouth.

"My wife was 21, five feet, two inch, about 125 pounds and was a brunette, her legs have the same short, dark hairs described by the papers. Also, on her left knee, she had a scar caused by a bad scald burn, scar being four inches long by one half inch or more wide, being thus easily discernible.

"As a matter of fact, Sergeant Miller of the Charlestown police is in possession of a complete description of my wife which I gave him when I called on Charlestown police for aid in finding my little family."

Detective Ross said he would forward copies of the letter to Charlestown and Dr. Brickley through regular channels and is of the opinion that the medical examiner can definitely state whether this woman may be the victim.

"BLONDE" MISSING

Another "missing girl" report purported to come to Superintendent Fallon from Chief Butler of Weymouth police. It concerned a blonde who the chief knew had been missing for a month although no official report had been made. Chief Butler, however, said he did not make the phone call and knew nothing about it. Fallon declined to make known the identity revealed to him.

Eliminated from the case was the possibility that the victim was a white slave case witness here who was last seen in the West End. Probation officers located her today.

One by one promising clues exploded. The skirt found at Winthrop yesterday was eliminated. It has been worn by a woman considerably taller than the victim, estimated by Dr. Brickley to have been five feet two or three inches in height.

NOTE IN BOTTLE

A note in a pint milk bottle, picked up this morning on the Winthrop shore by a woman who turned it over to police, proved without value. Water had obliterated every word except "the"; tests will be made in an attempt to bring out other words although authorities doubt it is connected in any way with the case.

Dragging was underway at the Warren avenue bridge, in Charlestown, for another reported bundle.

Check of East Boston stores which may have used the burlap in which the legs were found progressed slowly.

MOULAGE CASTS

Measurements made of moulage casts of the tiny "dancer's feet" may prove to be important. One of the casts indicates the girl may have purchased new shoes three weeks before she was killed.

The casts show the feet to be eight inches long, eight inches in circumference at the instep, three inches across at the base of the large toes. The nails were well manicured.

The ankle measured seven and three-quarters inches around, but was probably seven and one-half inches in life, Dr. Brickley said.

So small are the feet that the medical examiner at first believed, he said, that they were those of a girl of 12. Bone X-rays prove, however, she was a mature woman —"a woman more frail than thin," he stated.

CALLOUS ON HEEL

The clue indicating recent purchase of shoes was a callous about one-sixth inch in diameter on the bottom of the right foot near the heel, a "fresh" callous, Dr. Brickley deduced, caused by a shoe worn only about three weeks.

The only positive clues remained the legs themselves, the burlap po bag in which one was wrapped the burlap meat wrapping which the other was sewed, the curtain and the newspaper in ich the limbs were tied and the ine that was used to tie them.

Still without satisfactory results day was a continued police ef-rt to check up on the writer of mysterious letter which threat-ed an unnamed woman with ath and mutilation.

"You'll get the body, as I don't arry quicklime with me," prom-ised the man who penned the ines on Boston hotel stationery. he letter was written seven onths ago.

Two missing Cambridge girls, a ssing Somerville woman and a ssing Lynn wife were all well up ward the top of the list selected police for intensive investiga-on in connection with the harbor ath mystery.

"MY BILLS PROVE Electric Cooking is Inexpensive"
says Mrs. Dudley Baldwin, 12 Harvard Terrace, Allston

"My husband and I are lawyers. He argued that an electric range might be too expensive. But, after talking with friends who used them, I was sure he was wrong. And, I did so want to cook vegetables in steam, bake perfect cakes and pastry—enjoy its cleanliness! So, we bought one, and—it has exceeded my anticipations. Even my lawyer husband is convinced it doesn't cost me any more to cook electrically, and now he says, even if it did, our better tasting meals would be worth the difference!"

Helen T. Baldwin
(Mrs Dudley Baldwin)

"This is our first month's bill after getting our electric range. It shows a differential of $2.36 over the corresponding month a year ago. And as all my bills are now averaging about this same amount for cooking, I am delighted! But the low cost is only one reason I prefer electric cooking."

Unfortunately, we haven't space to tell you of all the grand things Mrs. Baldwin says about her range. Ask her! She has not received one penny for her testimonial—we sincerely appreciate her endorsement of electric cooking.

ARREST OFFICER IN MALDEN MURDER

operating a lodging house at Pleasant and Russell streets, Malden.

Downing, according to police reports following the investigation, had gone off duty shortly after midniht, and, accompanied by another man, had paid a visit to the widow's home.

IN DRINKING BOUT

The former policeman's companion left Mrs. Fowler's house a short time later, but Downing and the woman engaged in a drinking bout, according to police.

In some manner, Mrs. Fowler was shot with Downing's 38-calibre service revolver, suffering a fatal abdominal wound.

INQUEST FINDING

In an inquest finding last July, Judge Robert W. Hill of Salem, who sat as special justice in Malden at the inquest hearing, declared that Downing, "unpremeditatedly, but negligently" shot Mrs. Fowler while he was "befuddled by drink."

Downing is married and the father of two children.

He was placed in East Cambridge jail without bail pending arraignment.

With Cardinal O'Connell and Governor Curley, in addition to a number of other dignitaries present, funeral services for the Rev. Walter J. Roche, pastor of St. Patrick's Church, Roxbury, were held at the church today with a solemn high mass of requiem.

More than 1500 men and women attended the services. As the cortege moved along Dudley street, firemen attached to a fire station directly opposite the church stood at attention in front of the apparatus as the bell tolled.

The Rev. John A. Sheridan, pastor of Our Lady of Hope Church, Newton, was celebrant.

DODGE FARMS FOR WPA JOBS

Special to American Newspapers, Inc.

Chicago, Oct. 8—Farmers' representatives in Midwest states gave complete verification today to a survey showing that farmers have been left without help at harvest season because a million men have been kept on Works Progress Administration jobs.

J. F. Thompson, commissioner of agriculture for Michigan, declares that fruits and truck garden vegetables spoiled because workers could not be obtained, and that canning companies were unable to get enough employes in the rush season.

Acute labor shortages on farms in Indiana were reported by Bruce Hardy, a successful "dirt farmer" of Scottsburg. He asserted:

"Our dairy farmers have been forced to work 18 hours a day because they cannot get steady help, even at wages of $45 a month and board and room. Fruit and vegetable harvesting has been delayed for lack of employes, with loss to the farmers from spoilage."

From Frankfort, Ind., came reports of shortage of tomato pickers, with canning factories closing down as a result. Farmers were offering $5 a day for adult pickers, but less than 25 per cent of those on WPA at $55 a month left the relief roles to take such jobs. School boys were hired after school hours and Saturdays to salvage the crop.

A. J. Glover of Fort Atkinson, Wis., leader of the Farmers' Independent Council, said that construction companies, as well as farmers, were having difficulty in hiring laborers in their territory. He declared:

"The WPA employes don't want to leave the rolls for any kind of job. It certainly seems that WPA policies are pointed toward keeping men on boondoggling jobs instead of making them available for private employment."

Socialites Turn Out in Force For Premiere at Colonial

"IT WAS SIMPLY grandiloquous, folks" said Jimmie Durante . . . "grandiloquous beyond cavil. Me, a world premiere, lights, music, dancing, everything . . . and a brilliant audience of Boston socialites who were simply e-n-c-h-a-a-n-t-i-n-g, spelled with a double 'a' " . . .

And Jimmie is right . . . One of the most colorful social audiences which ever crowded into a Boston theater, attended the opening performance of "Red, Hot and Blue which benefited the Community Health Association . . .

FAITH BARNEY

Following in the footsteps of the other Cole Porter hits, "Red, Hot and Blue" is a parade of lavish, colorful costumes but their brilliance was dimmed a bit by all the gorgeous silks, brocades and jewels on the other side of the footlights . . . Top hats and tails, and the ladies in all their best finery kept the social editors' pencils busy as one after another of our most prominent citizens paraded down the aisle to their seats . . .

Many eyes followed Ambassador Joseph Clark Grew and his sister, Mrs. S. V. R. Crosby, as they made their way through the crowded foyer to their seats in the front row . . . the ambassador is such an aristocratic figure, and his sister made an attractive companion in her Yale blue lace gown with a deep cape of the same material . . .

Several recent bridal couples were in the throng . . . Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Hale Ham (Fanny Curtis) who were married last May, and the junior Amor Hollingsworths (Eleanor Gibson) were greeting friends on all sides . . . Evelyn Hollingsworth, who had a string of gardenias on her black dinner dress, and a wide sash of red and black figured material, was with a crowd of other Milton people . . . The Bob Saltonstalls, Jr., had a lot to talk over with Elise Russell as they gathered in the lobby in the intermission . . .

John Yerxas in Merry Party

ARNETT McKENNAN lent a semi-professional ear to the song hits of the show as he sat with Dot Preston . . . If Arnett keeps on composing hits like some of those he has done for the Hasty Pudding shows, we will probably hear more of him after his college days are over . . . Dot's dress was a frilly black net affair with tiny ruffles around the neck held in place with narrow blue grosgrain ribbon . . .

When Mr. and Mrs. Heywood Fox moved back to Southbridge from New York their Gotham friends kidded them about going to the backwoods . . . but Tubby has the laugh on them, now, for she came in town last evening to see the premiere of "Red, Hot and Blue," and it will be a week or more before it gets to New York . . .

Mrs. William Amory Parker and Mrs. Dudley Pickman, Jr., were almost identically dressed . . . simple black gowns under cocoa maribou capes . . . Mrs. Parker was in a group with the William Tudor Gardiners . . .

The John Yerxas were with Polly and Lincoln Davis . . . Mrs. Yerxa's black sequin tunic was fastened at the back with two huge crimson roses and offered a little rivalry to the glitter of Peggy Pierce's royal blue sequin top . . . Peggy had a fertile field for picking up fashion bits for her daily radio chat on styles, but even her words could not do justice to the appearance of her mother, Mrs. Robert Herrick, Jr., whose lovely figure and complexion were a foil for an intricately cut gown of gun-metal lame . . .

* * *

Bright Outfit of Royal Blue Lace

MRS. GARDINER FISKE, vice-president of the board of managers of the Community Health Association, was present, as were almost all the other officers of the association . . . Miss Gertrude Peabody wore a bright outfit of royal blue lace and was with her nieces, Anne and Cora Peabody of Milton . . .

The Joe Wondses sat with the Nelson Aldriches . . . Mrs. Aldrich was zipped into her black velvet gown which had a very tight bodice outlined with a band of scarlet and gold to match the border on the skirt . . . in her hair a diamond butterfly as well as a narrow brilliant band . . .

All those who missed Dorothy Stone's wedding had a chance to see how adorable her sister, Olivia, looked in her maid of honor dress of gold satin, for she wore it last evening . . . Polly Long has replaced the beautiful orchid dress everyone admired so much last year, with an equally pretty one of powder blue chiffon with bands of matching velvet around the hem . . . and Mrs. Alfred R. McIntyre's blonde hair and chartreuse chiffon gown made a pleasing silhouette against her husband's sober black . . .

Pauline Ehrlich and Mrs. F. S. Dellenbaugh, Jr., other members of the committee, of the Community Health Association, realized with infinite satisfaction that their efforts had been crowned with great success.

Sponsor Show

Miss Elizabeth B. Watson of Milton heads the ushers for the performance which Miss Cornelia Otis Skinner will give in Statler ballroom, this evening, for the benefit of the Community Church of Boston.

The ushers will be Letitia Howe, Anne Soule, Phyllis Motley, Leslie Eustis, Janet Forbes Eleanor Little, Marietta Howe, Anne H. Richards, Mary Bryant and Panelope Hill.

Among the latest subscribers for the recital are Mrs. R. G. Lopans, Miss Susan M. Andrews, Mrs. Charles F. Bruno, Professor Gerhard Dietrichson, A. E. Casgrain, Mrs. Arthur J. Wellington, Mrs. Philip Davis, Miss Ellen Riggs, Mrs. Katherine Noll, Mrs. Frank C. Doah, Miss June Reynolds and Miss Alice M. Talbot.

BUSY WITH Sanatorium Benefit Plans

NOW'S THE TIME for all conscientious society folks to come to the aid of their pet charity, and Mrs. Francis Appleton Harding (Caroline Read) of Dedham already has a head start. This is how she looked while reminding friends of the big time Thanksgiving night when the Central New England Sanatorium will benefit from the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe performance.

MEDFORD MAN LANDON SONG CONTEST WINNER

And still they keep coming in!

With the October 12 deadline approaching, our lyrically inclined readers—and they are legion—are losing no time in mailing their entries to the Landon Song Campaign Editor.

The winner of today's $10 prize is William Hawthorne, Jr., 9 Madison street, West Medford. His entry will be considered by the judges for the final awards of $1000 and $500 and the 25 prizes of $25 each.

Remember, everyone has an equal opportunity to share in these awards. YOU may be the winner!

Make sure to address all contributions to the Landon Song Campaign Editor, 5 Winthrop square, Boston.

A man-sized job he's facing, but our ALF is plenty game.
A fearless, brainy fighter and a real square-shooter, too,
He'll save the people's DO-RE-ME as COOLIDGE used to do.

(Refrain)

HAPPY LANDON! We're on our feet once more!
We'll take the CONSTITUTION—F. D. R. can take the door.
Yes, it's jobs and not relief we want, our native pride to kill.
We think too much of fellowmen to stick them with the bill.
You can't spend TEN while earning ONE as LANDON wisely knows,
And how can INDUSTRY get hot with NEW DEAL on its toes?
Now you can always trust a JACKASS to STOP when he should GO,
But they can't stop SPENDING MONEY, as you should sadly know.
The BUDGET BOOK can smile again when LANDON takes the reins.
He knows he's LANDON RIGHT-SIDE UP with GOOD OLD JUMBO BRAINS.
Oh, we're tired of HOT AIR SPEECHES and we're tired of NEW DEAL BULL.
Our country's blue from TAXES and our coffers far from full.
So let's FIGHT the FIGHT with LANDON and vote him in the CHAIR.
He's TRIED and TRUE and HONEST, too — INTELLIGENT and FAIR.

Socialites At Exhibit

It is quite natural that society women, who wear orchids at almost every affair, should be interested in the exhibit of rare and beautiful blooms, which was opened by the American Orchid Society at Horticultural Hall yesterday afternoon. Not only the spectators but most of the exhibitors were socialites.

Mrs. Albert C. Burrage of Beverly Farms had a large display of her famous orchids, as did Mrs. Elinor Linder of Wellesley. Mrs. William D. duPont of Wilmington, Del., wore a tiny corsage of button chrysanthemums of her simple brown satin and crepe dress as she stood by her large exhibit receiving the congratulations of friends. She is the house guest of Mrs. Edwin S. Webster who also has an exhibit of rare blooms.

Chandler Hovey is evidently in orchid culture as well as ocean racing, for he displayed several very unusual specimens, raised in his greenhouses.

Private View Of Peterson Portraits

SOCIALITES once again had the privilege of seeing themselves as others see them at a private viewing of portraits yesterday afternoon.

Miss Anne Peterson, post debutante daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Abbot Peterson, opened a one-man show of her paintings at the Vose Galleries, and almost all of her subjects were in the throng of invited guests sipping tea and viewing the exhibit.

Miss Mary Esther Cooper stood near her portrait and friends could compare the excellent likeness. Her navy blue sport suit contrasted with the scarlet afternoon dress which she wears in the painting.

Miss Catherine Pentecost brought Dick to see her portrait, knowing that a brother is a most critical judge. Other Bostonians whose portraits were in the exhibit are, Miss Barbara McKissock, Mrs. Samuel Johnson of Baltimore, who is the former Miss Eleanor King of Milton, Miss Constance Hoague, Mrs. James Smith, Jr., and Miss Evelyn Hassman.

Mr. Peterson, who is rector of the First Parish Church in Brookline, was present to greet the guests with his daughter. Miss Peterson wore a black tunic dress trimmed with narrow bands of green and white, and a corsage of deep fuchsia orchids.

Mr. and Mrs. John Anderson (Lallie Farnsworth), who were married last spring, were also there, Mrs. Anderson in a modish black under a beige coat with a beige collar.

Others who attended the affair are, Miss Frances McElwain, Miss Mabel Bell and her fiance, Bill Reed, Miss Leslie Blake, Miss Julia Jenkins and Mrs. Duncan Jenkins.

Lecture to Benefit B. C. Book Fund

By MARGUERITE DOWNEY

BOOK fund of the Boston College School of Social Service (such an erudite cause) is the beneficiary of the lecture which a prominent group of Boston women is sponsoring at the University Club, Tuesday afternoon.

Dr. Maurice Leahy, secretary of the Catholic Poetry Society of London, will be the day's drawing card and his topic will be "The Dominant Figures in Today's Literature." Tea, always an indispensable part of these afternoon benefits, will be poured by Mrs. Edward C. Donnelly, Mrs. John Collins of Malden, Mrs. Louis A. J. Mercier of Cambridge and Miss Georgia O'Neill of Boston.

Chairman of the benefit is Mrs. David Johnson, president of Guild of St. Elizabeth, and her assistants include Mrs. M. F. Foley of Brookline, who has recently returned from a trip abroad, Mrs. William McBain of Malden, Mrs. Joseph Cavanaugh and Louise Fitzgerald of Brookline, Mary Field of Salem, president of the Boston Chapter of Trinity College alumnae, Alice Falvey and Frances Keyes.

In charge of the ushering is Ellen Gray, post-debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gray, who will direct a group of students from Radcliffe College and Emmanuel College. Among them are Mary Keefe of Waltham, Helen Hines of Jamaica Plain, Helen Collins of Dorchester, Virginia Broderick, Louise Maguire and Claire Stanton.

Bringing guests to the lecture, which will be the last one of Dr. Leahy's in Boston during this season, are Mrs. Charles Winship of Wakefield, Mrs. Charles Hamilton of Cambridge, Mrs. John Dunn of Salem, Mrs. Stephen Gilman of Malden, Mrs. Edward Bushnell of Malden and Mrs. Maurice Curran of Andover.

Whether it is the pomp and ceremony which attends a church ceremony or a quiet afternoon wedding . . . the brides of the month are the topic of conversation.

One of the most attractive of the early autumn season will be Anna Belle Cruickshank of Dorchester who becomes Mrs. Edward O'Connel' at a nine o'clock ceremony Saturday morning in St. Peter's Church in Dorchester.

The bride will be given in marriage by her father, David Cruickshank, and her sister, Margaret, will be her only attendant. Serving as best man is William O'Connell of Cambridge, a brother of the bridegroom-elect, and Kenneth V. Minahan of Cambridge heads the list of ushers.

Among the pre-nuptials parties which have been given for the bride-to-be was the shower at which Mrs. Daniel Feeney of Wollaston was hostess and the dinner party which Porter Sargent gave at his home.

* * *

Last Monday in October has been selected by Carine Alice Nannery of West Roxbury as the day on which she exchanges wedding vows with George Frances Dervan of West Roxbury.

St. Theresa's Church will be the setting for the wedding at which Rev. William F. Lyons, pastor, will officiate.

Attendants at the wedding will be Mrs. Alice Connors of Roslindale and John Dervan of West Roxbury.

Reception will be staged at the Copley-Plaza, after which the bridal pair will leave on a trip to Washington and points south.

NOTE OF ACKNOWLEDGEMENT TO A FRIEND: This daily batch of words has been tolerated now for going-on a month. Newspaper features have been known to last less than than a week. But, belatedly, the undersigned wishes at this juncture to say simply that the notion of telling whole stories in a dozen or so words between three dots originated with Mr. Winchell. A whole flock of stars of stage, screen and air waves parade through the reels of "The Big Broadcast of 1937." Jack Benny, hailed as radio's ace comedian, and Martha Raye, who stole the honors in "Rhythm on the Range," are the featured favorites in this scene from the film which tops the bill at the Metropolitan, starting tomorrow.

New Bills

Two important pictures take major screens in Boston tomorrow.

"Dodsworth," with Walter Huston, Ruth Chatterton, Paul Lukas and Mary Astor, is the attraction at Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters and "The Big Broadcast of 1937," featuring Jack Benny, Martha Raye, Bob Burns, George Burns and Gracie Allen, and Benny Goodman and his orchestra, is scheduled for the Met.

The Met's screen show will share honors with David Apolon's "1937 Revue," making the program practically unanimously a look-ahead program.

Los Angeles, Oct. 8—Much more than a mere gleam in his eye is Darryl Zanuck's ambitious plan for "The Siege of the Alcazar," the story of which Sonya Levien is now preparing.

Louella O. Parsons

As soon as Madrid falls and H. R. Knickerbocker, famous International News Service reporter, who has been an eye witness to the siege, can be spared from his line of duty, he will be invited to come to the 20th Century-Fox studios as technical advisor. The production, however, will not wait for Knickerbocker but will be started as soon as the scenario is completed.

That isn't the half of D. Zanuck, who is following the Spanish war with the zest of a school boy reading Nick Carter. [illegible] has also purchased Walter [illegible] ... now in its seventh week in [illegible] "The Fugitives" deals with the outbreak of the revolution in Barcelona.

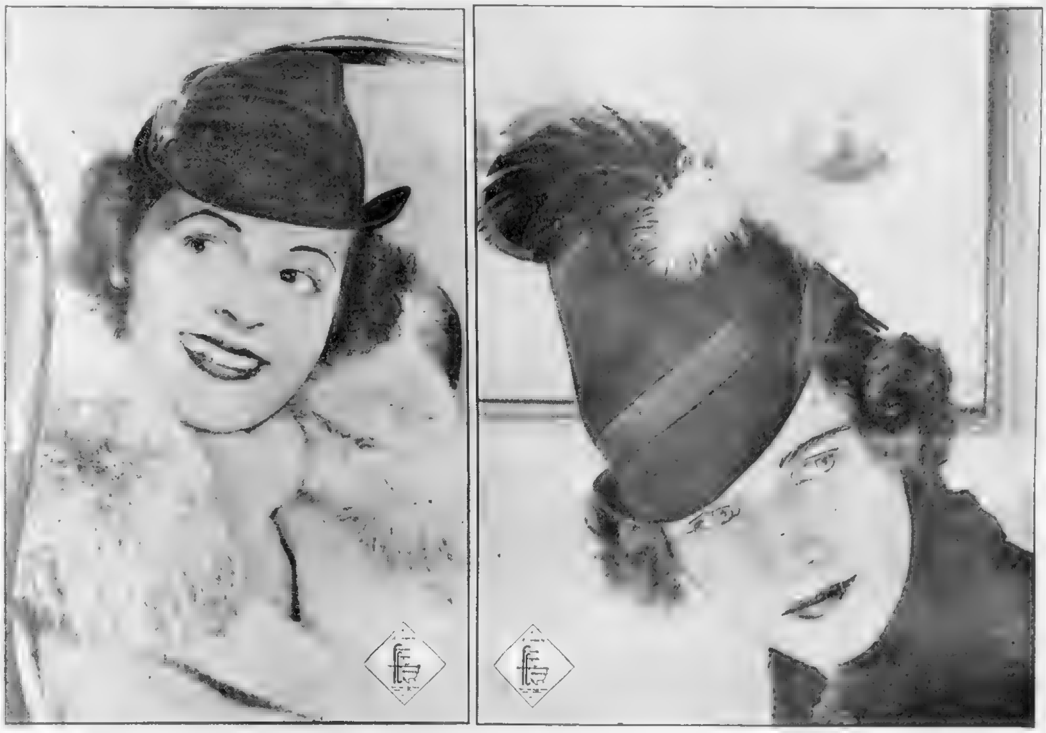
Sharp Rise and Giddy Feathers Mark Trend of Hat Market



THERE'S NO LIMIT to the height of hats or the positively lunatic angles that [illegible] get themselves into—even in the bonnets which once were in the prosaic class. We [illegible] which accompany muffly, big coats to football games, or which finish [illegible] town costume of rough wool and furs. HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those gnawing, nagging painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Water Combs Give Hair a Natural Wave; Here's The Way to Do It

By DONNA GRACE

WATER waving was at one time a very popular method of waving the hair, but since the hairdressers have become so deft in the art of finger-waving, the older method is seldom used.

There are a few women, however, who seem to prefer that method, and it is done in this way. A set of water wave combs is necessary. They are from 4 to 6 inches in length and slightly curved. Then smaller ones are used, too, when necessary.

When the hair has been shampooed and rinsed it is wiped with a towel to remove some of the water, but it is not dried. It is again wet with a thin wave lotion, and when combed out a large comb is placed with teeth upward for the first part and with the hair guided toward the face.

The second comb is placed slightly back and under the first comb with the teeth upward and the hair is swung backward in the opposite direction. This zigzag movement is repeated almost to the ends.

Both sides and the back are finished and then the finger ends are made. If the hair is long it may be done in a roll or finished in curls. When all the combs are placed securely a piece of tape is wound around the head to secure them and hold them firmly in place. Then a net is used to cover the head and it is dried as usual. When the hair is dry, remove the combs carefully [illegible]

[illegible] wave when the hair is [illegible].

MARRIED COMRADES -:- By Adele Garrison

CHAPTER 119

WHEN I wakened, after an hour in which I sank "fathoms deep in delicious slumber," it was to the consciousness of my husband's kiss upon my forehead. I raised my lids to meet his eyes, smiling quizzically down at me.

"I believe that is the accepted formula for awakening sleeping beauties," he said.

I put my hand up and touched his lips softly.

"I love to hear you tell 'em, but you really mustn't perjure yourself," I said with a laugh, and then, catching at his hand, I pulled myself to a sitting posture and then to my feet.

With a rush of affectionate gratitude to my husband drowning out my irritation, I forced my voice to a lightness of tone calculated to make him believe that his efforts to divert me had been successful.

"If an appreciative audience is one whose sides are aching, I'm it," I averred, smiling. "Are the boys ready for dinner?"

"Ready—and ravenous," my husband retorted. "They're respectively hopping from one foot to another, as near the dining room as they can get, waiting for the dinner gong. Katherine just hailed me from the nursery door and said she would be down the staircase pronto.

"Faith is sound asleep, which, I gather, is a triumph of her nurse over adverse circumstances, and mother has offered to have a dinner tray in the nursery in order to let Katherine come down to the dining room. It seems Katrina refuses to leave our young daughter alone in any room while this peril affecting your father is in evidence."

"I know," I said, "and I share her feeling."

"So do I," Dicky declared heartily. "Katrina let me in for a farewell glimpse before Faith went to sleep, and 'adorable' is a most inadequate word for describing our daughter. In fact, they haven't invented any that really suit her."

"I hope that mother—" I began anxiously, then stopped short.

"Out with it," Dicky said, and I told him of the incident of the afternoon when Faith's grandmother had taken Faith up because she whimpered, soothed her by rocking her and then sent the baby into a tempery fit of screaming by insisting that she go to sleep with the rocking and singing.

Dicky frowned and then grinned as he listened.

"So that's the reason for the tray upstairs," he said. "Well! the gods have ample laps and it's in 'em. If Faith sleeps until Katherine comes back, everything will be lovely. But if she whimpers, my doughty mother will take her up as sure as fate."

LESSON 12

[illegible]

Use twine in the tunnel

the Number 1 dance to crash.

There are usually two lines of guards at the house dances, one at the outer gates, and another at the entrance to the dance floor. The first is composed mainly of the Yard Police. In the second you'll find one or two Yard Cops and two members of the house committee.

* * *

Perhaps the best and speediest way to crash a house dance, is through the underground passage. We'll explain what that is, for the benefit of you Freshmen who haven't learned the ins-and-outs of Harvard's subterranean system.

There is a tunnel which runs to all the houses and under parts of the Yard. It can be entered from the basement doors and the kitchens of the houses. All the food which is used in the houses is transported from the central supply point through this tunnel.

There is also the heating tunnel, which is narrower than the other, and connects with it at various intervals.

In preparation for your crashing attempt, it is well to find out in advance just where, from your particular house or hall, is the entrance to the tunnel. Then you can fix the lock, which is on the inside of the door. They are supposed to be locked at night.

But there are other ways of getting into the tunnel—such as through hatches. (A most convenient one is located on the second floor of Eliot House.) Or you may get in through the grating underneath the Cambridge end of the bridge opposite Dunster.

Be careful that you don't get lost in these tunnels. They have branches that go darting off into other tunnels, and then criss-cross and zigzag all over the place [illegible] the power. [illegible] down in the [illegible] to [illegible]

Babe Ruth Barking Up Brooklyn's Managerial Tree

Austen Lake

WHEN BABE RUTH CIRCULATED A propaganda note along the press rows during the final World Series game at the Polo Grounds on Tuesday, it marked the second time in three years that Babe has interrupted the labors of the series writers with personal messages. Tuesday's statement, under the letter head of the sport syndicate which sells Babe's literature, was typed in a tone of humility and read, "I am still young and active. My heart is in the game. I am not soliciting a job, but wish to make it known that I am available. My desire to be a major league manager is not governed by ideas of big money."

[illegible]

"I asked Ruppert whether he was satisfied with Joe McCarthy's management and when he said 'Yes,' I replied, 'That's all I want to know.' I will never accept another player's contract, either with the Yankees or any other ball club. But I am open to any offers to manage a major league ball club."

* * *

Will Work for Proportional Pittance

UNTIL THIS AUTUMN BABE HAS never divorced the notion that Colonel Ruppert would some day call him to fill McCarthy's shoes. The Yankees' 1936 runaway race and series mop up has finally disillusioned him.

[illegible]

* * *

Has Scaled Down His Notions

BUT IN THE FOURTEEN MONTHS WHICH have intervened since he called a newspaper meeting in the Braves' rubbing room and began his resignation-speech by saying, "God knows I hate to do this . . ." he has scaled down his ideas of suitable employment for distinguished person and is almost pathetically eager to be hugged back to the public bosom and be Babe, the baseball manager.

[illegible]

[illegible] KIDD, brilliant Holy Cross star, will direct the Crusaders against the strong Dartmouth [illegible] in the first major clash for both teams Saturday. Kidd is a Melrose boy who was All-Scholastic while in High School. Rex, in addition to his field generalship is one of the best place kickers in college ranks.

BLAIK DRIVES GREEN

By BILL GRIMES

[illegible]

It [illegible] be fatal to Dartmouth's [illegible] of victory should any of [illegible] first string players meet up [illegible] today, for it would [illegible] replacements [illegible]. And, [illegible] will be a most valuable asset, even indispensable, against Holy Cross, one of the most highly rated elevens in the East.

Due to the high calibre of the Crusader squad Dr. Eddie Anderson will turn loose here Saturday [illegible] Coach Blaik has no alternative other than to rely on his [illegible]. He cannot afford to [illegible] heavy [illegible].

The Big Green will take as few [illegible] possible [illegible] absence of [illegible] which, of [illegible] will make it necessary for [illegible] to carry most [illegible].

[illegible] sophomore [illegible] Bob [illegible], Moose Taylor and Lud [illegible] have the first call. Bob [illegible] who is the son of Gene [illegible] former manager, is given [illegible] "Hawk-Eye" [illegible] a real [illegible] for center. Ray is not in [illegible] condition because [illegible] and this is [illegible] his three years of [illegible] competition that he ever [illegible] for [illegible].

[illegible] Framingham [illegible] six feet three and [illegible] 187 is pressing [illegible] for possession of left [illegible]. [illegible] is going fast under [illegible] Harry Ellinger but he has not reached the point of development whereby he has the [illegible] veteran Camerer.

Lud Pyrtek, who came from Hartford High school, via Dean Academy, with Joe Cottone, the sophomore back, who may crash the head lines this week end, is a substitute right end. Lack of weight is Pyrtek's main handicap, for the former Dean star weighs only 165, and the Big Green coaches favor the heavy type of flankmen, such as Johnny Merrill and Merrill Davis, who not only tower well over six feet but weigh in the "nineties."

With the exception of Emil Conti, the midget ball carrier from [illegible], [illegible] all of the No. 1 [illegible] backs are sophomores, namely Bob MacLeod, Joe Cottone, Len [illegible] and "Wacky" Pratt. Harry [illegible] quarterback [illegible] Montreal [illegible] Johnny [illegible] sub, and [illegible] trained the 1934 Exeter eleven, is the third string No. 4 back.

Dartmouth will be on the short end of the pregame betting and the odds will be about 7 to 5 Holy Cross. The Big Green may come through but if it does, it will be a great surprise.

IF KICKING is needed, Paul Bartolomeo, Holy Cross halfback, is certain to see plenty of action. He is a great offensive back and one of the best punters on the squad. Fans who saw the Cross-B. C. game last will well remember his work.

Line Material Is Anderson's Problem

By WALTER KILEY

Worcester, Oct. 8—Were Holy Cross as well off in lineman as it is in backs, the problem of beating Dartmouth on Saturday would be greatly simplified.

PURPLE
KNIGHTS
READY FOR GREEN
RIVALS AT HANOVER

The Purple has a wealth of backfield material. Much of this is tried and proven.

[illegible] has yet to be [illegible], [illegible] enough in varsity [illegible] so that Dr. Eddie Anderson can't afford to [illegible] too much on them in the [illegible] game with the Green.

Of all [illegible] backs Dr. Eddie rests most [illegible] with [illegible] Joe Yablonski, [illegible] fullback, who [illegible].

Those who recall the Carnegie Tech-Holy Cross game of a year ago [illegible] Yablonski saved the day with his great defensive [illegible].

[illegible]

High Praise

"There are none better than Yablonski and that includes Dartmouth's Hamilton and all the others of the East. He has no superiors defensively and he is a very effective man on the offense.

He showed the makings in his sophomore year. But he was still jittery. He really started to go places in his junior year. Now as a senior he will prove himself not a good back but a great one."

[illegible]

Anderson has already gone on record about [illegible], the big high stepping [illegible] right halfback. The coach says "He may break up the Dartmouth game any minute."

[illegible]

"I never worry about [illegible]," he says. "He's smart and always follows instructions. Any coach would be glad to have him on his team."

HANEY ON 'WORKERS' ALLIANCE'

Mob Spirit Encouraged BY REGIMENTATION Of Roosevelt New Deal

By LEWIS HANEY

(Professor of Economics, New York University)

New York, Oct. 8—The outstanding news is again, today, the situation that is developing in the Works Progress Administration.

It was a sure sign of approaching trouble to learn that Works Progress Administration workers were being organized into a new group, the "Workers' Alliance."

But one has to wait for the trouble to break before hoping to convince anyone.

* * *

Well, it is beginning to break.

Yesterday I wrote of the violence of certain "artists" in demanding "work relief." Today it is the Workers' Alliance. The story is brief and simple:

There are several "home relief bureaus" in New York City, engaged in dispensing federal funds collected from taxpayers all over the country.

One of these was picketed all day by a gang of some 500 persons, reported to be members of the "Workers' Alliance." They demanded larger relief allotments.

Finally, they took possession of the bureau's offices. They threw chairs and tables down stairs, ripped telephones from walls, and, in general, acted as a mob.

The police were called, and a free-for-all resulted, with three injured and seven arrests. Among the latter was a Louis Pitinsky, charged with felonious assault.

It will be difficult for some good American citizens to understand all this. Why should these "workers" be rioting at the doors of a federal relief bureau now, when, after three years of "recovery," we are back to prosperity?

Or is it that the New Deal prosperity is of a different sort from the old-fashioned prosperity?

* * *

Whenever you regiment gangs of men, the "organizer" gets in his work. The professional organizer is a parasite who preys on groups of greedy and discontented men. The Works Progress Administration army is his "meat."

This also makes another organized minority for politicians to control. The "organizers" or "leaders" will deliver the vote to the highest bidder.

Underneath it all is sheer demoralization. With the slogan, "Washington Will Provide," the ideas of efficiency and pay-according-to-product disappear. Economic life becomes political life. Men become addicts to the something-for-nothing drug.

Then, when their dope is withheld, they run wild. The mob spirit is encouraged by such regimentation.

* * *

All this is of the essence of the Roosevelt New Deal. (You do not participate in this part of it and do not realize what it leads to, but you can now see the symptoms to which I refer.

Under American democratic institutions, each man asked only the pay he could earn by really productive work. If that was not enough, he reluctantly accepted relief.

Under the New Deal, each is to get what somebody in Washington thinks he needs. He gets less than he might, because of the swarm of parasitic leaders, organizers and bosses who must "get theirs" first.

I cannot help but believe that part of the game is to buy the votes of the Works Progress Administration dependents.

* * *

What may happen in this last respect, no one knows. Messrs. Roosevelt and Farley are likely, however, to find two results:

First, that the thrifty middle class citizen will be disgusted at the Works Progress Administration spectacle and will vote it out by voting Landon in.

Second, the Works Progress Administration crowd itself may become disgusted and actually bite the hand that has fed them.

After all, a man may shoot a Santa Claus who fails to deliver!

As Works Progress Administration life grows on the addict, he demands more. If the politicians do not keep on, he feels abused and discontented. There may be a political kick-back in it.

* * *

It does not make sense to turn from a political speech telling of employment gains, contentment and prosperity, to these accounts of Works Relief riots.

Something is wrong with the system.

MILL SHARES RISE

Many N. E. Issues at New Highs

Strength in New England mill shares, which has been almost uninterrupted since early summer, has carried practically all of these issues to 1936 highs, and, in fact, to the highest prices in many years. Improvement in this industry, accompanied by a large amount of good news in the past six months in the form of increased sales and earnings, has not found market enthusiasm lacking and prices have advanced sharply.

Report of the Goodall Worsted, published a few days ago, revealed net for the year ended July 31 equal to $11.58 a share, against net of $5.16 in the preceding ten months. The company earlier in the year paid a dividend of $2 against previous payment of $1. Naumkeag Manufacturing recently paid a dividend of $1 against 50 cents. Pepperell, which reported net equal to $11.53 a share in the year ended June 30, against a loss in the preceding year, raised its dividend to $6 annually, against $4 annually and Sanford placed its stock on a $4 basis, against $2.

The outstanding stock has been Pepperell, which has just sold on the New York Curb at 109½, an advance of over $50 from its 1936 low. Goodall Worsted at 64 bid is up over $40 from its low point. Berkshire Fine Spinning preferred is up almost $40 to 54 bid. In the lower priced group, Nonquitt has appreciated from a low of 3 to a current bid of 20½ and B. B. & R. Knight preferred, from a low of 5½ to a current bid of 19.

The following table compares current bid prices (asks in the case of listed issues) with approximate 1936 lows:

TRUSTS Buy U. S. BONDS

MORGENTHAU'S POLICY

Special to American Newspapers, Inc.

Washington, Oct. 8 — Government securities pack the portfolios of some 2000 million dollars in trust funds administered by Secretary Morgenthau, Treasury records today disclosed.

Under a policy laid down by Morgenthau, only government bonds or federal securities wholly guaranteed by the government are being purchased for the trusts affecting millions of individuals.

For nearly three years Morgenthau has been purchasing monthly millions of dollars of government bonds on the open market for the trust funds.

Sometimes these purchases, made at premium prices, exceed 30 millions a month. They are announced monthly by Morgenthau. He claims that he has made a profit for the trusts on all purchases he has made.

* * *

The condition of the government list on the market often is reflected in the amount of purchases, the reports indicate.

One of the largest trusts administered by Morgenthau is that for the United States Government Life Insurance Fund, which represents approximately 800 million dollars paid in by thousands of World War veterans for insurance.

This fund was sharply depleted under the 50 per cent bonus loan act, but was replenished under the cash payment law, and all available funds are invested in government bonds either Treasury or Federal Farm Loan.

In addition Morgenthau administered the adjusted service certificate funds which, the last available report shows, amounted to 155 millions in 4 per cent Treasury certificates of indebtedness.

Another large trust administered by Morgenthau is the civil service retirement and disability fund, more than 274 millions of which are invested in government bonds.

* * *

There are various other trusts, including 68 millions in government bonds, for the alien property fund.

The yield of the government bonds ranges from 2¾ per cent to 4¼, and many of the securities held in the trusts are special notes authorized to bear four per cent. These special notes are carried as special obligations of the government.

Records show that in administration of the trust funds, the treasury secretary has acquired the highest interest-paying Federal obligations possible.

As a result, the Treasury borrows money from banks at a low rate of interest, through sales of bonds, and pays a higher rate of interest on securities held by the trust funds, records show.

BROAD Prosperity SEEN

WITH LANDON AS PRESIDENT

Special to American Newspapers, Inc.

Chicago, Oct. 8—Election of Governor Landon as President of the United States will signalize the beginning of the "broadest period of prosperity this country has ever enjoyed," B. C. Forbes, widely-known commentator on financial affairs, declared here.

Attacking the New Deal for its spendthrift policies, he branded as false administration claims of fostering the recovery shown in business thus far and declared the flood of restrictive laws "that have poured like Niagara out of Washington have not hastened recovery, but have held it back."

Forbes, writer for the Hearst and other newspapers and editor of Forbes Magazine, reported finding sentiment in Chicago and surrounding territory favorable to Governor Landon's election and that "the feeling here is that we will not have to run the gauntlet of four more years of huge spending."

* * *

Recovery, proceeding from the natural forces of rehabilitation and "despite the acute political uncertainties of the past few years," will continue for the next two years even without a change in administration, he declared, adding:

"The United States has lagged seriously behind other world powers in the rate of recovery shown to date, but I am fairly confident that should Mr. Roosevelt be re-elected the upturn has already gained sufficient momentum to carry it on for a couple of years."

The Social Security Law, "one of the biggest things ever hatched in Washington," was branded "absolutely impossible" of being carried out on a sound financial basis.

* * *

Advising employers to "take a broader view of their social responsibilities" Forbes said:

"Although we have done more than any other country for our working people, not enough progress has been made in bringing about living conditions acceptable to the masses. Employers must be more energetic in 'selling' the value of the existing industrial, capitalistic system.

"Unless the people can be sold more soundly on America, another crop of Huey Longs, Townsends and Coughlins will come along. This country under both Hoover and Roosevelt came perilously near a dangerous upheaval. Business must do more to take care of their own lest the politician step in and do the job ruthlessly. We must take a broader view of our social responsibilities or we will see this country plunged into a social mess like other countries are now suffering from."

BANK CLEARINGS

UP 26.2 P. C.

Over Same Week Last Year

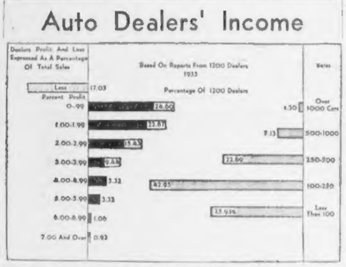
New York, Oct. 8 (AP) —Bank clearings in 22 leading cities totaled $6,343,693,000 during the week ended October 7, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

This was a gain of 26.2 per cent over clearings of $5,025,028,000 in the same week last year. In the preceding week clearings in the same cities were 13.3 per cent below the 1935 comparative.

The increase in the past week was due in part, the agency said, to heavy settlements incident to the end of the month. These were a week earlier in 1935.

Clearings at New York city aggregated $4,072,477,000, a gain of 25.7 per cent over $3,238,625,000 recorded a year ago. The total of $2,271,216,000 at outside centers represented an increase of 27.1 per cent over 1935.

—VOTE AMERICAN—



The National Automobile Dealers' Association considers that a 5 per cent net profit on total sales volume is a fair return to the auto dealer.

In 1935 only 5.31 per cent of 1200 dealers were able to realize this profit. Over 77 per cent of the dealers made less than the standard 5 per cent and 17 per cent of them lost money.

As to sales, the majority of dealers (42.95 per cent) sold from 100 to 250 cars during the year. Taken altogether, over 91 per cent of the 1200 dealers sold under 500 cars while 8.4 per cent managed to go over that mark.

Wall Street Sidelights

New York, Oct. 8—Gross revenues of Southern Railway for September are estimated to have aggregated around $11,400,000, closely paralleling the $11,420,000 for August, the preceding month.

This would indicate that the road, with no unusual charges, should show net operating income in the vicinity of the $1,924,000 for August. Southern Railway, for the first seven 1936 months, reported net income equalling 74 cents a share on the 5 per cent preferred stock, against a deficit of $5.17 a preferred share in the like 1935 period.

* * *

North Western Traffic Spurts

Chicago & North Western Railway loadings have turned up sharply, and currently are running 26 per cent above a year ago. This contrasts with a gain of 15.7 per cent over the like 1935 period in the cumulative loadings for the first 39 weeks of the year. The road's operating position has been showing substantial improvement over a year ago. While August gross of $8,785,000 was $1,462,000 above August, 1935, operating net at $1,126,615 showed a gain of $663,000. The road is being reorganized under the bankruptcy laws. In the first seven 1936 months, it failed to show any income applicable to fixed charges, while in the like 1935 period, fixed charges were 13 per cent covered.

Money Becoming An Exact Science?

Monetary science, if it can be thus described, has certainly been advanced by events in recent years. Wholesale desertions of currency relationships for new alignments within the brief spell of a few days have been accompanied by a minimum of confusion. This is because in each instance authorities have acted to counteract largely the undesirable consequences by skilful management. Ability to cope with the problems arising out of devaluation is undoubtedly due to the fresh imprints of reactions in various nations under similar circumstances.

The wealth of material provided in recent years for monetary experts should serve as an approach to making money more of an exact science.

Wage Rate Revisions On a New Basis

Revision of wage-rate schedules on a sound, equitable and scientific basis is being undertaken by an increasing number of progressive companies, according to a survey by the National Industrial Conference Board. Serious consideration of the economic and social soundness of wage-scales, the board's study points out, did not end with the code-making period of the National Recovery Administration. Actually, it only got well under way at that time.

Whether the minimum rates, as established, worked out satisfactorily or not, the question of the defensibility of particular rates had been so definitely raised that industrial executives began to study the question on a wider scale than ever before. Most wage-rate structures, the report continues, are the hit-or-miss result of a multitude of conflicting factors and influences. Individual rates, for the most part, have been the products of a series of "push and pull" forces which have carried some upward and others downward. Conformity to any reasonable or precise standard has usually been attained more by accident than by design, it declares. Through such revisions, the whole subject of compensation, the most fruitful and persistent source of grievance and hard feelings, the board points out, is being placed on a co-operative, uniform and objective basis.

Light & Power

Rockland Light & Power Co. declared regular quarterly dividend of 15 cents per share and an additional dividend of 10 cents per share, both payable November 2 to stock of record October 15.

N. E. Power Seeks Bond Approval

The New England Power Company today asked the state public utilities commission to approve the issuance of $10,067,000 of first mortgage bonds in order that the company might take advantage of a lower interest rate.

F. J. Dunn, vice-president of the company, explained that the proposed issue is to refund a like amount of first mortgage 5 per cent bonds which mature July 1, 1951. He said the company intends to issue the new bonds to mature in December, 1966, and to bear an interest rate of not more than 3.5 per cent and possibly as low as 3 per cent.

Commissioner Henry C. Atwill pointed out that the callable feature of the existing bonds provides for payment of par plus $5 and asked how the company intends to finance the $500,000 cost of this feature. The company representative said that the plan is to amortize this charge over the life of the old bonds. "Of course, this would cut down the savings," he added.

Dunn said that if the new issue is sold to underwriters it will be necessary to register the bonds with the Federal Securities and Exchange Commission, but that such registration will not be necessary if an institution is the purchaser.

As he calling of the bonds must be done by November 18, Dunn urged an early decision on the company's request. There was no opposition and the matter was taken under advisement.

REAL Estate REVIVAL

EXCESSIVE LENDING

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

(Copyright, 1936, by Universal Service)

Los Angeles, Oct. 8—The psychological stage here has been gradually set for another revival of popular interest in real estate, which may in due course reach the boom stage.

Already loose serial lending agencies are repeating the time-honored mistakes of excessive appraisals as the basis for loans on individual homes according to conservative bankers here.

In the new construction of homes not a few are of extremely extravagant proportions. In reviewing evidence of a return to the good old days, one sober graybeard remarked: "we differ from animals in that we don't learn by experience."

But head shaking and admonitions are premature at this stage when construction, though distinctly better, is still sub-normal.

Even with the building industry in this phase, there is already a perceptible shortage of skilled mechanics on the coast, and industries with an artificially short work week are beginning to lose them to trades which offer a fuller week, with a correspondingly higher weekly wage. Though theorists lay stress on the hourly wage rate, the family breadwinner is primarily concerned with his total weekly stipend.

My chats with local bank executives indicate that pessimists are non-existent here. One bank president remarked:

"Everyone who comes into the bank nowadays is optimistic—Republicans, Democrats, even Socialists."

He was asked how about the Epics, and replied:

"You don't hear much about them anymore."

If that is correct, that, too, is barometric. With re-employment men's minds turn from fantastic schemes concocted during depression periods to confidence in individual thrift and industry and to faith in simple arithmetic.

Despite the widespread trade pickups, financiers report no considerable rise in the demand for commercial loans, although there has been some moderate improvement in this direction.

With their incorrigible bias toward optimism, banks here and in San Francisco have resisted the tendency in other centers to drag down interest rates on savings and time deposits to prevailing subnormal earning power of money. Here the saving rate is still 2 per cent. There has been a strong minority sentiment for getting it down lower, but this view has not yet prevailed.

Meantime, the banks of the city, in the search for earnings, have analyzed all deposit accounts carefully and have put them on a metered service basis, with the idea of making every account pay its own way.

As in other parts of the country, discussion inevitably turns to politics.

A new wrinkle is the growing consciousness by the opposition that it may well prove victorious, and this makes them wonder whether it will be politically profitable to undertake to retrench and to liquidate the blunders of the New Deal. Some defeatists would rather wait another term in the expectation that the country would then recognize its mistake and turn to the G. O. P. for salvage. Such a trading opportunistic conception is hardly praiseworthy and is in sharp contrast to Alf Landon's courageous volunteering to go in, roll up his shirt sleeves and do the salvage work, however unpleasant.

Bankers here and in all parts of the country are closely watching their deposit accounts to see what "smart money" is doing after the new spell of devaluation overseas. The rising premium on Canadian funds reflected some shifting of funds across the boundary. On the other hand, barring politics, the American dollar appears relatively attractive in a world beset with uncertainties.

Trade Is TRENDING Higher

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Current reports show that most New England business, including the important shoe and leather industry, are going forward and the trend of trade in this section is towards greater volume.

The Dun & Bradstreet report received today features textile conditions. Cotton successfully survived a finished goods price test while woolen branches continue somewhat slow.

Retail trade conditions continue to be satisfactory in the New England sector. Figures now available show that the January-August period recorded a 10 per cent retail gain over similar 1935 months and this week sales have been at an accelerated pace. Some buying of heavyweight garments has been deferred because of the mild weather. All in all Dun's report for the week makes cheerful reading and suggests that the trade foundation is so firm that additional gains may be expected.

Conditions in the cotton textile industry are most interesting to us because of the miniature boom in the securities of the industry. Right now State Street is enjoying the first real upward movement in cotton mill shares in many years. Buyers have rallied to the group as reports of improved profit margins accompanied higher finished goods prices. Last week raw stock prices eased but gray goods held firm and when the former recovered quotations on the latter were again marked up. Right now most of the important units in the industry, according to Dun & Bradstreet, are sold ahead for two or three months and are less anxious to book future orders.

Notebook:—Liquidation of a large block of Allied Stores, presumably for a trust, is said to be completed . . . Which should clear the way for a discounting of actual trade prospects . . . Barnsdall, noted here some time ago, is showing better action than anticipated . . . Albeit somewhat belatedly . . . A dividend this year on Electric Boat is the story going the rounds of local boardrooms . . . U. S. Industrial Alcohol took the omission of its dividend in fine style and now after the lapse of more than a month it is safe to say so . . . The stock could do better with any break in the news . . .

* * *

So far this week utilities have easily been the big feature. The concentrated buying recently witnessed speaks for itself while refuting the claims of those who say it is just a passing affair. We doubt that the large orders executed are of the hit or miss sort and feel it safe to say really important interests believe they see a turn in the tide of political vindictiveness. Other than that the rotating factors anticipated are definitely in the limelight and as yet there are no indications of any major inclinations toward distribution.

* * *

Ticker Talk: The worry over a freight car shortage has passed the talk stage . . . It is now very real with estimators saying that the current surplus is probably less than 75,000 cars . . . And the situation in the passenger car division is much more comfortable . . . Glidden's followers expect full year earnings of better than $3 per share . . . Colgate-Palmolive-Peet is considered attractive at present levels . . . The oils are still looked upon as a backward bracket . . . And boosters of the group say higher prices before fall is over are a certainty.

STOCKS Continued MIXED

PROFIT TAKING IN EVIDENCE

New York, Oct. 8—The stock market today scrambled to a new 5-year perch after an early tussle with profit-takers that sapped some of the vitality of the leaders.

It was the fourth consecutive day's advance to new peaks.

While foreign affairs were a bit cloudier, buying inspiration was again found in a bright budget of domestic economic news.

The steels, motors and aircrafts wilted at the start. At the same time such low-priced utilities as Commonwealth & Southern and United Corp., edged forward in blocks of 50,000 and 20,000 shares respectively. The ticker tape lagged for a while, but caught up later. The more-depressed issues rallied near the fourth hour, although many failed to cancel their losses.

Bonds and commodities were slightly mixed. Cotton futures sold off on the government's higher crop forecast, but came back. Foreign currencies were quiet.

Shares of Chesapeake & Ohio, Chesapeake Corp., and Alleghany Corp. got up 4 or more points each on announcement the railroad will pay extra dividends. Alleghany controls Chesapeake Corp., and the latter has a substantial stake in C. & O.

Among lesser gainers were Yellow Truck, Montgomery & Ward, Woolworth, International Paper & Power preferred, Kennecott, Anaconda, American Smelting, American Can, Goodyear, Greyhound Corp., Penn-Dixie Cement, Columbia Gas, Western Union, U. S. Steel and Republic Steel.

Backward were Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Briggs Mfg., Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Wright Aeronautical, General Motors, Chrysler, Nash, International Harvester, Deere, Consolidated Edison, North American, Hiram Walker and General Electric.

Business News

Business and industrial news held the principal attention of the boardrooms before the start of trading.

Recent strength of several preferred utility issues was attributed partly to expectations a series of payments toward accrued dividends will get under way before the end of the year. Power output gains also indicated a continuation of the favorable earnings trend in this field throughout the final quarter.

Followers of the steels noted with satisfaction the report of the American Iron & Steel Institute disclosing production of steel ingots in the first 9 months of this year totalled more than the entire 1935 output.

Easing of the European monetary tension was reflected in a reduction of the bank of France discount rate from 3 to 2½ per cent.

RETAIL SALES In Florida Up

Washington, Oct. 8 (INS)—Retail sales in Florida in 1935 totalled more than $421,000,000, an increase of 46 per cent over 1933, the Department of Commerce announced today.

Sales in 1933 totalled $288,804,000 in 21,697 stores. The 1935 total is $421,249,000 in 24,232 stores. The 46 per cent sales increase over 1935 is in contrast to a sharp decrease between 1929 and 1933 which amounted to 43 per cent of the 1929 volume in Florida.

CINCINNATI

Scarcity OF SKILLED Workers

By B. C. FORBES

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 8—This city faces a scarcity of skilled workers.

Privileged to meet and address a large gathering of business leaders at the Chamber of Commerce, I today gleaned many inspiring facts, facts which encourage hopefulness that, regardless of the presidential election outcome, the country will go forward.

For example:

Construction this year has run more than twice the volume of last year. Residential building permits are three times last year's total.

Already there is a distinct shortage of qualified labor for new building.

Bank clearings have increased more than $20,000,000 over the same period last year.

Stock exchange transactions have almost doubled.

Exhibits at Cincinnati trade conventions have been the largest ever. The shoe fair not only attracted record-breaking attendance, but visiting merchants placed more liberal orders than in years.

At times every hotel has been solidly booked.

Cincinnati, great railway center served by eight trunk systems, and a focal point for river traffic, has lately been handling distinctly heavier transportation business, reaching 2000 to 4000 more cars per week than twelve months ago.

Retail trade shows substantial gains and merchants regard the outlook for fall and winter as excellent (instalment sales now reach 13 per cent of the total business done).

Wholesale trade is 20 per cent ahead of 1935. Last winter's severe weather almost exhausted stocks; consequently, very heavy demand is anticipated.

* * *

Some other Cincinnati facts:

Cincinnati leads the world in production of soap and machine tools. (Demand for the latter is likely to exceed manufacturing facilities as national recovery quickens).

The center of bituminous coal, it handles over 400,000 cars annually in the local terminal and nearly 3,000,000 tons additional on the Ohio river.

Two of the largest sheet metal mills in America are within its metropolitan area.

The bulk of commerce between the north central states and the south passes through this city. Cincinnati regards its Union terminal as the most modern in the world. Cost, $41,000,000.

It has no fewer than 1700 industrial plants.

It boasts a 1100-acre municipal airport and five others in its territory.

It is a homey city. It has no fewer than 448 churches. Also, two universities. Parks abound, 115 of them.

Its population is 475,000.

* * *

Its city manager form of government, established more than ten years, is pronounced highly successful. Not only can civic affairs be administered in a business-like way, but political evils, so rampant in many cities, can be and are reduced here to a minimum.

Nearly all the business men I have contacted are either moderately or pronouncedly optimistic.

President W. F. Wiley, of the Chamber of Commerce, tells me:

"Every important index of business in Cincinnati has shown substantial improvement this year as compared with last year. With new construction more than double and much more in prospect, related businesses naturally are enjoying a forward movement. The schedules indicate clearly that this activity will continue through the remainder of 1936—and doubtless into 1937."

Manager J. A. Higgins, of the allied construction industries of Cincinnati, says:

"Modernization and repair of older properties have been a larger factor in the total program within this area, during the past year. Many owners, believing that an increase in construction costs is inevitable during 1937, are making preparations through their architects for new industrial plants to be placed on the market for bids during the first quarter of 1937."

GENERAL DEBILITY

Mrs. E. A. Archibald, [illegible] Cambridge, Mass., says—"I fell and injured my [illegible] in June, 1936. I used [illegible] Dr. Walsh and had him treat me. I had at this time been suffering from general debility, was constipated and had more or less kidney trouble. I was always tired, never seemed to get rested. Dr. Walsh's treatment did so much for me that my husband, my daughter and her husband were treated by Dr. Walsh and we are all so pleased with Dr. Walsh's treatment that I make this statement that others who suffer from chronic diseases may know where to go for relief." The Tryst of Death in Minnesota

THE Democratic Party in Minnesota HAS KEPT ITS TRYST OF DEATH with the Communists.

The absorption of the Democratic Party into the Communist Party under the UNITED FRONT of the Farmer-Labor movement in Minnesota is now complete.

Following the withdrawal of DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATES in the State from the contests for Governor and U. S. Senator, THE COMMUNISTS have now withdrawn THEIR candidates.

In both instances endorsement of the Farmer-Labor candidates followed, with the support of Franklin D. Roosevelt AS THEIR SINGLE PURPOSE.

Does any sane American believe the Communist objective ends with Minnesota?

As long ago as last March, the Communist newspaper in New York City, the Daily Worker, said editorially:

"Let Minnesota take the lead, the rest of the country will follow!"

MINNESOTA HAS NOW TAKEN THE LEAD.

The Democrats have sold their birthright in a desperate effort to elect Mr. Roosevelt.

THEY ARE WILLING TO ELECT HIM ON COMMUNIST TERMS.

The Communists have shrewdly bargained for the future. The price they ask for the support of Mr. Roosevelt is the DELIBERATE SUICIDE of the Democratic Party.

THEY WANT THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY OUT OF THE WAY IN 1940.

* * *

SHOCKING as the revelation of these Minnesota amours must be to all loyal Americans, and particularly to REAL DEMOCRATS, they are further appalled by the evidence that the national leadership of the Democratic Party HAS GIVEN THE BETRAYAL ITS APPROVAL.

The President who proclaimed his disavowal of Communist support at the Syracuse convention HAS MADE NO MOVE TO SAVE HIS PARTY IN MINNESOTA.

On the contrary, he CONGRATULATED the Democratic deserters on their loyalty to HIM.

The amazing fact written across the political horizon of America IN RED LETTERS is that:

THE PRESIDENTIAL NOMINEE AND THE NATIONAL CHAIRMAN OF THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY CONCUR IN THE MINNESOTA TRAGEDY.

More than that, THEY HAVE COLLABORATED WITH THE COMMUNISTS in bringing it about.

What further proof does America need of the BOND OF POLITICAL SYMPATHY and of COMMON ACTION that exists between the Communists who are looking ahead to 1940 and the present leadership of the Democratic Party?

What further proof do DEMOCRATS need of the betrayal of their party by its false leaders?

* * *

IF THE Democratic Party is to survive, if America is to continue under the system of government that has made it the greatest and the best nation on earth, THE REST OF THE COUNTRY MUST NOT FOLLOW MINNESOTA.

Deport Alien Reds! Rescind The Recognition of Soviet Russia

THE fact that Communism—nurtured by Soviet Russia—is seeking to destroy the free institutions of America is not to be denied.

Neither is the shameful fact to be denied that COMMUNISTS are supporting Franklin D. Roosevelt for re-election in 1936 IN ORDER TO BUILD A REVOLUTIONARY "PEOPLE'S FRONT" IN 1940.

Mr. Roosevelt has said that he repudiates this support.

But what has he done to prove that he repudiates it?

Russian Communism in America can be officially repudiated only by two courses of executive action:

1—By immediately deporting all alien Communists, as the law requires; and

2—By immediately rescinding the recognition of Soviet Russia.

A "Roosevelt Rally"

THE TREMONT TEMPLE mass meeting of 3000 needle workers Tuesday was not a rally for the Democratic Party. It was a rally for Roosevelt.

David Dubinsky, the gentleman who sent $5000 to the "workers" in Spain, made that clear.

But all the flowers did not go to Mr. Roosevelt. At least one bouquet—a big one—was tossed to Earl Browder, Communist candidate for President.

Said Mr. Dubinsky:

"Browder is honorable, honest, straightforward and has the courage of his convictions."

Applause greeted this declaration, but, somehow, real Democrats were inclined to feel that much of the hand-clapping might have been more vigorous had the "Roosevelt Party's" slate been revised to read:

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT FOR PRESIDENT.

EARL BROWDER FOR VICE-PRESIDENT.

As it was, John N. Garner, Democratic vice-presidential nominee, who still prefers to call himself a Democrat, received no mention.

SHARING Garner's oblivion—and his absence—were Governor Curley, Congressman Arthur Healy and Candidate-for-Governor Hurley.

There wasn't even a red posy from Browder's bouquet for them.

And, just as the posies were all Roosevelt's and Browder's, there was also an abundance of Browder's political strategy.

In Dubinsky's "regardless of party we must join in the effort to re-elect President Roosevelt" one could sense an echo of Browder's assurance in Boston Sunday that "OUR Farmer-Labor party is supporting President Roosevelt, though not, thank God, the Democratic Party."

It is significant.

On one side Dubinsky, whose $5000 check went to Communist-ridden Spain.

On the other side Browder, whose allegiance went and still goes to Moscow and Stalin.

Between them, figuratively, receiving their mutual praises, Mr. Roosevelt.

Spending Tax Billions

THE National Civil Service Reform League is making a valuable contribution to the future of the nation, in working for the extension of the merit system to include all government workers.

America needs the highest type of men and women in the public service. The training of intelligent, honest and ambitious young people in PUBLIC SERVICE AS A CAREER is the only method that will fill this need.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

I'm a woman—glad of it—never had any desire to be anything else. I believe in women—in their great, natural courage, their ingenuity and adaptability, their capacity for loyalty and tenderness. I'm proud of the records women have made.

Elsie Robinson

And I'm convinced that women are entitled to the same rights as men, and will make, in time, as valuable citizens.

But I do NOT think that women are a special treat and I'm sick of seeing them act as if they were—and completely disgusted with any woman who uses her sex to obtain unfair advantage.

I'll admit that there was excuse, in the past, for such female maneuverings. Woman, then, was rated with domestic cattle and had no power or privilege save that which she obtained for herself by wily connivings. So one can hardly censure the Little Lady if she outsmarted her Lord 'n' Master with swoons and pouts, tears and tantrums.

However, we're out of the harem now, girls. We are no longer rated as chattels or cattle but possess, today, quite as much power as men and, usually, far more privilege. Also—what is far more important—we face as tall challenges and heavy responsibilities. Which, if we would accept them, would go far toward turning us from domestic pets into regular people.

DEMAND CODDLING

But at this point, women waver. It's delightful to have the same power as men. But when it comes to paying the same price for that opportunity, or facing the same penalty if we mess it up—nothing doing!

Men, themselves, started these unfair and demoralizing practises with the institution of Chivalry. No man ever really believed that Woman was made of finer clay, as man-made statutes proved. But it was infinitely more convenient to put Woman on a pedestal and pretend to worship her, than to let her run around at large. And pedestals proved so alluring to lovely, lazy ladies that they failed to see the slick shenanigans behind the scheme.

Pedestals have long since passed from the picture but the cussedness they engendered hasn't. The average modern woman expects every possible Machine Age opportunity and liberty, but she still demands all the exemptions, protection and petting of the Horse 'n' Buggy Era. And heaven help her particular man if she doesn't get them!

PRICE OF EQUALITY

The simple truth is—woman nature is exactly the same as man nature. Woman is no purer, kinder, no more honorable than man . . . no more entitled to respect unless and until she, individually, earns it. There are as many filthy-minded, cruel, lying females as there are males . . . as many sensitive, honorable, gentle, generous men as there are women.

And every sensible, self-respecting woman will admit the fact and scorn the thought of Special Privilege.

Either we ARE equal, sisters, or we're not. If we ARE, let's pay the price for the privilege, and proceed to act our age. If we aren't, let's admit it, climb back into our hoop skirts and stick to our tatting.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, Oct. 8—When a big liner has docked during the day I like to go down to the piers around dusk to watch the crew fellows, all primped up, come ashore for an evening in town. They are mannerly, seemingly content to walk the streets two and four abreast just looking.

O. O. McIntyre

Most of them, too, seem undersized, with milky complexions, oddly cut clothes and bad teeth. They are full of salutes and have a delightful way of expressing themselves. They never talk to strangers unless approached, and then seem pleased to converse.

The majority are victims of the cheap waterfront barbers—haircut and shave 20 cents—and are turned out with ramifications of the bowl style of cutting. As a result they suggest picked chickens and are compelled to bear the atrocity for weeks.

Then, too there are pert manicure girls and the smartly dressed managers of the specialty shops aboard ships. All are accomplished linguists. Most of them, I hear, are happily married. And the Romeos who expect them easy pickups find something else again.

Speaking of haircuts, there was a Dutch queensware merchant in our town who would journey all the way to Pittsburgh to be properly tonsored. He was remindful of Colonel Henry Watterson, down at Louisville, who would drop his tools on occasion and hie to Paris for some of his favorite sauce-drenched dishes and a carafe of his favorite rose-colored wine. A toddy drinker at home, he would partake of wine only in France.

And Russ Cole tells me of a fellow in the Internal Revenue department at Washington, an esthete with the spunk to carry out his notions, who sends his shirts to St. Louis to be laundered. He believes they get a certain "do" on them in the Missouri metropolis he cannot acquire anywhere else.

Swank Englishmen years ago used to send their laundry across the channel to Paris. Out of this laundry business grew the famous haberdashery salon of Charvet in the Place Vendome. The first Charvet was a washerman.

Memory: That black cloud that rolled up out of the southwest upon an afternoon circus performance in our town. And, with the enormous top billowing into mountainous waves and side poles hopping, the announcer stood on a blue trick animal tub and shouted: "Ladeez and gentlemun: A violent storm is approaching. All those who remain under this canvas do so at their own risk." Then the first blow of the twister. Trees waving like feathers. Women and children, scurrying helter skelter, screaming. The trumpeting of the elephant and the quick, snarly roar of the lion. Then big raindrops hitting the tent like bullets. I recall the clown who took me by the hand and comforted: "Now, Bub, don't cry. You'll be all right!"

Many, too, in our rememberwhenning like to recall the street corner medicine show and the Stetson-hatted Diamond Jack with the rattle snake belt who did the spieling. He was always promising us that the cork-faced Alonzo would play the banjo again as soon as he disposed of these few remaining samples of Kickapoo Indian Bitters—a dollar a bottle with two bars of wonder soap thrown in. Diamond Jack was master of crowd psychology. When he saw a drift away he hustled on entertainment and held suckers to the end.

And somehow we can't see where the radio has departed from this style of salesmanship.

They tell it on Lucius Beebe. One recent midnight he somehow appeared in the Grand Central subway station in tails, white tie and silk topper. Stepping into a shuttle train, he found the whole train complaining of not getting started. Beebe walked to the middle of the car, held up a white kid gloved hand aloft, and bellowed: "Trainmen, do you realize we must get to Times square with the serum. Be off—moments are precious!"

Today's Text: "Children are the heritage of the Lord."—Psalms 127:3.

The Bible in New Dress

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

It just happened that among our family books was a volume of sermons by the Rev. Jeremiah Kenworthy, of Newbury, published in 1828. One of those sermons was a raging philippic against those who dared even to hint there was such a thing as poetry in the Bible.

Edwin C. Hill

Once, when I had mislaid the current issue of "Deadwood Dick" and there was no good haymow reading at hand, I browsed a bit in this book of sermons, was jolted by the violence of the Rev. Mr. Kenworthy's assault on those who would mess up the Bible with such blasphemous tommy-rot as poetry.

BOOKS IN SEQUENCE

The anger had been aroused by the writings of a brother in the cloth who contended that Good Book fairly sang with poetry. The Rev. Jeremiah's notion clearly was that there was something wickedly and dangerously illicit in poetry, and that even if it wasn't evil it was too pleasant to be pious.

Anyway, I began reading the Bible then and there, and there was implanted a veneration for the traditional format of the Bible—heaven knows why!—which in later years has made me somewhat uneasy with all this talk about typographical tinkering with the Word.

Hence, the new tour de force by Simon and Schuster, publishers, "The Bible Designed to Be Read as Living Literature," arranged and edited by Ernest Sutherland Bates, had to contend with the impact of past decades when it came to this desk. I forgive Mr. Bates everything. He has kept the noble King James version, without modernizing the language. As to the text itself, the only changes are in punctuation.

The innovation lies in arrangement, the segregation of stately blank verse as such, placing the various books in historic sequence, the inclusion of succinct historic background sketches, a compact history of the Bible and the various translations—with no disparagement to any veneration one may bring to it, but with all the light and guidance with which a fine literary and typographical craftsman may supply.

Cotton Mather would have burned it. The Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick would, I am sure, acclaim it. Personally, it appears to me to be a book for both the studious and the devout. But there are two conflicting moods when one first sees the Bible in modern typographical dress, sees the Book of Job printed as a poem-drama, with a cast of characters. Old and venerated austerities dominate one mood, and the stimulus of the new light of today the other.

"A certain timidity has seemed to haunt the counsels of the boldest, a reluctance to make any changes not absolutely necessary," writes Mr. Bates in his explanatory introduction. And he goes on:

"But the time has surely come when a purely literary edition of the Bible is called for; one in which the sole care shall be to present the text in as enjoyable and understandable a form as possible.

"If the present edition attains in any degree its high and humble aim of fostering love and appreciation of the Bible as literature, or if even it merely inspires others to perform the same task more adequately in either case, it will have been worth while."

Mr. Bates observes that knowledge of the Bible, "regarded throughout the Western World as the most important of the world's books," has declined in recent decades.

WILL IT INTEREST YOUTH?

In occasional contacts with undergraduates this writer also has observed this. Rarely does one find a youngster who has read the Book of Job. I have noticed that pretty nearly every student I know seems to be majoring in English, yet I have found only one or two whose studies have been enriched by what is undoubtedly our greatest fount of noble diction—the King James version of the Bible.

It would be interesting to offer this book to an eager and intelligent young person, with no invocation or authority of sanctity, and see whether he will find there what our fathers found, under compulsion rather than allure. Which works best? And is deep ethic wisdom something to which youth can respond?

'Dear Govt.'

By Winston Norman

Prof. Tugwell
Prof. Dept.
Wash., D. C.

Dear Prof. Tugwell:

Has any of you Govt Professors wrote a history book for Parents? I am the father of a small boy by the name of little Wilbur, age 7, and I want to learn the new-stile history so I will not feel so fuleish in my own house.

Take last night for instance. I wanted to put little Wilbur to sleep, so I told him the old story about Noah's Arc. "Noah was a wize man," I says to little Wilbur, "Noah saved all the animals in the world, includeing his Relatives. He done it by bldg. a big Arc just before the Flood," I says.

"Shucks, daddy!" says my little boy. "If Mr. Roosevelt had been there, there wouldent of been no Flood."

Well, Prof. Tugwell, our children sure do learn the Facks of Life in a hurry. I seen that little Wilbur dident believe my story about Noah, so I give him the one about Joseph.

I told him how Joseph got throwed out of the house by his Brothers, and the next thing he knowed he was a King: "So then Josephs brothers begun to die off in a Drout," I says, "but Joseph put them on Releif. He saved their life by giveing them some Extra Wheat. Joseph had growed more wheat than he needed, he was a wize man," I says.

"Shucks!" says little Wilbur. "Joseph was purty dumb. He dident know that Mr. Roosevelt don't allow any Drouts. I hope the Govt throwed that old Joseph in jail for growing too much wheat." says Wilbur. "Did old Joseph plow under his Pigs, like Mr. Roosevelt told him too?"

I tried to tell my little boy that Mr. Roosevelt wasen't there, and Joseph dident plow under no pigs, becauze Joseph never ate pigs, but by that time little Wilbur diden't beleive a word I said.

Prof. Tugwell, it just goes to show that History has changed a lot since the New Deal took it over. Us grown-ups is beginning to feel purty fuleish, becauze our children is just like Mr. Roosevelt. They don't take no stock in our old-stile Bedtime Storys, and if Mr. Roosevelt stays with us another 4 years, History will make Liars of u all.

An American Father,
W. NORMAN.
